CHEROKEE BANK PRESIDENT AND VICE PRESIDENT GET TEN YEARS

Henry P. Mueller and Harry G. Friert Plead Guilty of Embezzling $208,000 and Falsifying Books of Closed Depository.

5-YEAR SENTENCE FOR ASSISTANT CASHIER

Government Charges That Money, Taken Over a Period of Years, Was Used by Officers for Stock Market Operations.

Henry P. Mueller, president of the closed Cherokee National Bank, and Harry G. Friert, vice-president, were sentenced to 10 years in prison by Federal Judge Davis today when they pleaded guilty of embezzling $208,000 and falsification of the bank's books. The money was used in stock market speculation.

Rudolph L. Provaznik, assistant cashier, indicted jointly with them, also pleaded guilty and was sentenced to five years in prison.

The indictment charged embezzlement totaling $159,000, but District Attorney Brewer, in his statement to the court, said he had been informed by the Federal receiver who is liquidating the bank that the total embezzlement was $208,000.

To Leavenworth Saturday.

The bankers made no statement in court, but their counsel briefly commented on the evidence as it concerned each of them. Leaving the courtroom they were taken to the United States Marshall's office before going to City Jail. They will be transferred to Leavenworth Penitentiary Saturday.

Brewer told Judge Davis that Mueller and Friert were active in organization of the bank in 1925 and were in direct charge of its affairs. Provaznik, while assistant cashier, had the duties of a bookkeeper, Brewer said. The Government had no evidence that Provaznik shared in the money embezzled, Brewer said, but he was in a position to stop the embezzlement of Mueller and Friert and had not done so.

The bank, the District Attorney said, was prosperous until 1929 when Mueller and Friert began to speculate in the stock market with its funds.

Helped Straighten Out Affairs.

"For the purpose of this speculation," he added, "they simply forged notes in the names of prominent St. Louisans or customers of the bank, or forged withdrawal slips on savings accounts." Before the indictments were returned, Brewer said, Friert aided the Government in straightening out the affairs of the bank, and Mueller had given such help after his indictment. None of the three, he pointed out, had any previous criminal record.

In behalf of Provaznik, who is 40 years old and lives at 5218 Loughborough avenue, his attorney, Patrick H. Cullen, said everything he had done had been at the direction of Mueller and Friert. His client, he said, had obtained none of the money embezzled, and he asked that leniency, and possibly parole, be granted.

Friert's attorney, former Prosecuting Attorney Albert Schweitzer, said Friert had been dominated by Mueller, and that he continued to make use of the bank's funds for speculation with Mueller under threats of physical violence made by the bank's president.

William Eber, counsel for Mueller, denied there had been any threats. His client, he said, was not seeking to shift the burden on any one, but by his plea of guilty had assumed the burden.

To Drop Other Charges.

The indictment to which the bankers pleaded guilty was one of six in which they were named jointly or individually. The others are to be dismissed. It contained three counts of falsification and one of embezzlement. Each defendant was sentenced to five years in prison on each count. For Mueller and Friert the sentences are to run concurrently, as are those on the third and fourth counts. In Provaznik's case, all sentences are concurrent.

Friert is 47 years old, and lives at 2818A Fillmore street. He is married and had a son at the University of Illinois when he was arrested. An adult daughter lives at home. Provaznik also is married and the father of two children. Mueller, who is 53, has two sons who are recent high school graduates. The family home is at 3620

10 YEARS FOR DRAKE ESTATE CLAIM FRAUD

Oscar M. Hartzell Convicted on 12 Charges Involving Use of Mails.

By the Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, Nov. 15.—Oscar M. Hartzell, promoter of a claim to the Sir Francis Drake estate in England, was found guilty today on 12 Federal charges of using the mails to defraud in collection of funds for his enterprise.

Federal Judge George C. Scott sentenced him to 10 years in Federal penitentiary and fined him $2000.

Carlos Goltz, defense attorney, announced the case would be appealed.

The verdict meant the end for the jurors of more than three weeks of confinement during which they were prevented from reading newspapers or conversing with others than themselves.

The trial began Oct. 24. In the 12 counts Hartzell was charged with sending through the mails letters in promotion of a fraudulent enterprise.

He was labeled a "swindler and racketeer" by Government attorneys for his collection of between $700,000 and $1,300,000 from American donors to finance his 13 years' hunt in London supposedly establishing claim to the estate.

The defense contended he had obtained an assignment of claims of an heir to an unrecorded son of Sir Francis Drake who had been fraudulently deprived of his share in the famous privateer's fortune amassed through piracy along the Spanish main.

STRICTER NRA ENFORCEMENT NECESSARY, JOHNSON DECLARES

He Reports to President on His Speaking Trip Into Middle West.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Hugh S. Johnson took to President Roosevelt today a report that compliance with the new NRA enforcement agreement is not working successfully and means must be taken quickly to secure more thorough enforcement.

This conclusion was reached by the NRA administrator on his 10-day swing around the midwest which he said today he considered highly successful from every point of view.

At virtually every city where he spoke, he obtained reports on conditions. The overwhelming conclusion was that non-enforcement stood as the greatest immediate hazard to NRA's part of the recovery program.

The Administrator appeared to have a clearly defined idea of how the situation should be handled, but he did not make his intentions public.

He has decided to hold a new hearing on the construction code, which has caused extensive controversy.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 15.—Andrew W. Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury, and his brother, R. B. Mellon, yesterday contributed a total of $250,000 to the Allegheny County Community Welfare Fund. This is an increase of $30,000 over their combined donation last year. The gifts brought the fund total to $1,093,824. The amount sought is $2,837,000.

Car Hits Truck Trailer Near Ridgeland, S. C., When Going 75 Miles an Hour.

ERSKINE GWYNNE, COUSIN, INJURED

Chauffeur, Who Was Not Driving, Also Hurt—They Were Motoring From Miami to New York

By the Associated Press.
RIDGELAND, S. C., Nov. 15.—William K. Vanderbilt III, 26-year-old son of William K. Vanderbilt II, was almost instantly killed, a companion slightly injured and his chauffeur severely injured when their sedan, traveling at high speed north from Miami, crashed into the trailer of a fruit truck parked on a highway near here today.

Vanderbilt was thrown clear of the machine which Policeman Q. A. Nettles said seemed to be traveling at approximately 75 miles an hour. The Vanderbilt car careened down the highway 150 feet or more before turning over in a flip.

Erskine Gwynne, a cousin of Vanderbilt, was slightly injured, and J. W. Guppy, chauffeur, suffered a broken leg. It was reported Vanderbilt was driving the car, a foreign-made machine.

The truck was owned by A. B. Stavley, a New Jersey produce dealer, who was on his way north with a load of grapefruit. He had stopped to repair a tire. The Vanderbilt automobile was demolished but the truck was damaged only slightly. Slavely was not injured. Ridgeland is 90 miles south of Charleston.

Vanderbilt died a few minutes after arriving at Ritter Hospital in Ridgeland.

A short time before the crash Vanderbilt had relieved Guppy at the wheel.

Young Vanderbilt had gone to Florida a few weeks ago with his father on the latter's yacht, and the elder Vanderbilt had preceded him to New York.

Vanderbilt was treated by a physician in Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday, for facial lacerations suffered when a bird struck the windshield of his car, near Bunnell. The party proceeded northward after the shattered windshield had been replaced.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—William K. Vanderbilt, who was killed today in an automobile accident near Ridgeland, S. C., was a son of Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt II, her former husband.

Most of the time young Vanderbilt lived with his mother, who has her home at 60 East Ninety-third street in New York City.

William K. Vanderbilt II and the mother of today's accident victim were divorced in Paris in 1927. Subsequently he married Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton Jr. of Philadelphia.

The youth killed today had two sisters, Mrs. Henry Delafield Phelps of Newport and New York, the former Mrs. Frederick C. Church Jr. of Boston; and Mrs. E. T. Smith of New York. Mrs. Phelps was the former Muriel Vanderbilt; Mrs. Smith was Consuelo Vanderbilt.

LAWYER FOR BANK OF U. S. CONVICTED OF AIDING FRAUD

Isidor J. Kresel Approved Loan Over Objection of State Commissioner—Helped Seabury Inquiry.

FACES 3 1-2 TO 7 YEARS IN PRISON

Director of Big New York Depository Now Defunct Defended by John W. Davis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Isidor J. Kresel, former counsel for and director of the defunct Bank of United States, today was found guilty of abetting the misapplication of funds of an affiliate of the bank.

The verdict was returned in Supreme Court by a jury which deliberated about eight hours after listening to a nine-hour charge by Justice George H. Taylor Jr., the longest ever delivered in the criminal branch of Supreme Court here.

Kresel faces a prison term of three and one-half to seven years if the verdict stands.

Defense counsel indicated they would immediately appeal the decision if a motion to new trial is refused.

Kresel went on trial Sept. 15 on an indictment charging him with abetting misapplication of $2,000,000 of the bank's funds, that sum having been part of an $8,000,000 loan made by the bank in 1930 to three affiliated safe deposit companies.

Two Others Convicted.

Bernard K. Marcus, president of the Bank of United States, and Saul Singer, vice-president, are now serving terms in Sing Sing for misapplication of funds in connection with the transaction.

Kresel denied he had any part in the making of the loan in contradiction of a charge by Assistant District Attorney James G. Wallace that plans for the transaction had been worked out in a conference between Kresel and Marcus and Singer. Kresel said he was present at the conference merely in his capacity as counsel for the bank.

In delivering his charge, Justice Taylor told the panel they must decide whether Kresel "willfully aided or abetted" in the transaction. He also instructed the jurors that in deciding whether Kresel was guilty they must decide whether evidence presented at the trial would establish beyond a reasonable doubt that he proved Marcus and Singer guilty, since they had been indicted and tried on the same count.

Aided Seabury Inquiry.

Kresel in 1930 crusaded with Samuel Seabury against corruption in the Magistrate's Courts. He has often been called one of New York's most talented criminal counsel.

Nine indictments originally were returned against Kresel in connection with the failure of the bank. One was a charge of perjury of which he was acquitted.

During the trial ended today Kresel was represented by John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1924, while Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential candidate in 1928, headed a host of character witnesses.

One charge emphasized in the prosecution of Kresel was that he, against Seabury's advice, had advised the Banking Department, advised Marcus and Singer to go ahead with the transaction which formed the basis of the indictment.

Immediate removal to the Tombs was avoided when the prosecution agreed to continuance of Kresel's $100,000 bail.

Judge Taylor ordered the payment of added compensation of $250 each to the jurors in view of their patience during the long trial. Jurors in the trial of Marcus and Singer were given added compensation of $500 each. The Judge remained on his feet during the entire delivery of the charge and stayed in the courtroom throughout the night.

GREEK PROSECUTOR OF INSULL IS ASSAULTED ON STREET

By the Associated Press.
ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 15.—Anthony Riganacos, public prosecutor in both the extradition trials of Samuel Insull Sr., was assaulted today by an armed man on a downtown street. He was injured and the assailant was arrested.

Police who overpowered the unidentified attacker said he drew a revolver and was about to fire when they stepped in. Police made no statement as to whether the attack had any relation to the strong public feeling sympathetic to Insull.

Riganacos, in his official capacity as public prosecutor, pleaded before two courts for Greece to return Insull to the United States to face charges growing out of the collapse of his utilities enterprise. Both pleas were rejected.

WIFE TAKES RIVAL TO HUSBAND, KILLS HER IN HIS SIGHT

Mrs. Pearl Hall Abducted and Shot to Death in Dallas, Tex., in Presence of L. W. Boone.

MRS. BOONE TELLS POLICE SHE DID IT

Her Friend, Mrs. Marshall, Who Accompanied Her, Is Held as Material Witness.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 15.—Mrs. Pearl Hall, 30 years old, employed in a chain grocery, was abducted from her room early today by two women, taken to the residence of L. Wirt Boone, hardware buyer, and after being accused of being too intimate with Boone, was shot to death before Boone.

Mrs. Boone, 35 years old, mother of an 8-year-old son, was arrested and admitted the shooting, police say. Mrs. Russell Morrison, a friend of Mrs. Boone's, was held as a material witness.

Mrs. Hall was aroused early today and compelled to go to the Boone home. There she was forced to talk to Boone. Following the conversation, Mrs. Hall was shot to death.

Details of the abduction and shooting were given in Mrs. Boone's statement, officers said.

Awakened by His Wife.

Boone, who had gone to bed, was awakened by his wife, who told him three women arrived at the apartment.

Turning to Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Boone said: "Tell him what you have been telling me," apparently referring to statements Mrs. Hall had made during the ride to the Boone apartment.

"Hello Dan," Mrs. Hall said to Boone, "she knows all."

Mrs. Boone said that as she went into the bedroom, she picked up a revolver. Mrs. Boone said that Mrs. Hall kept her hand in her heavy fur coat. During the scene in the apartment, Mrs. Boone said that Mrs. Hall "suddenly started toward me and before I knew what had happened, I had fired the pistol one time."

The woman slumped to the floor. Boone disarmed his wife.

"Goodbye, Daddy," Mrs. Hall said as she died.

Boone's Statement to Police.

Boone, in a statement to police, described the shooting as follows: "I went to sleep and the next thing I knew was when I was awakened about 3:30 a. m., and saw Mrs. Hall near the bed at my side. My wife stood near the foot of the bed, close to the kitchen. Mrs. Hall said to me: "Dan, she has got us."

"Dan, what do you mean?" "She replied, 'She knows all about us.' I then asked her what she was doing there. She replied that she came over to finish it, or to end it, or to wind it up, I do not remember which.

"Beginning to awaken by that time, I turned back the cover, got one foot on the floor to grab Mrs. Hall, as I did not know how she had got in my house or what she came there for, but having heard the remarks she made, felt there was going to be trouble.

"Before I could reach her I heard my wife say, 'Go back and don't move another foot.' I did not know anyone had a gun."

"At this point, Mrs. Boone fired once, the bullet striking Mrs. Hall in the left breast."

Mrs. Boone's Version.

Mrs. Boone said that she and Mrs. Morrison went to the place where Mrs. Hall was staying, and told her that they were friends of Boone.

"I had been getting anonymous telephone calls for weeks telling me my husband was stepping out," she said. "At first I did not pay any attention to them, but last Sunday both a man and a woman called me and told me the same thing."

Then Mrs. Boone faced her husband and demanded an explanation.

"He passed it off by saying that some one was just trying to have some fun with me," she said.

HEARINGS ON NAZIS BREAK UP IN UPROAR

Congressman's Testimony Before House Committee Stirs Up Demonstration.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—A statement by Representative Focht (Rep.), Pennsylvania, that he regarded Clarence Hathaway of New York, editor of the Daily Worker, as an anarchist, today broke up the public hearings of the House Immigration Committee into alleged Nazi propaganda in this country.

Hathaway, lone witness of the session, had just testified that he was a Communist and opposed to present capitalist form of Government in the United States. Some of those in the room cheered Focht's assertion and others booed and hissed. The special detail of police immediately restored order as Chairman Dickstein (Dem.), New York, pounded the gavel for silence. One woman screamed as an officer escorted her to the committee room door when she persisted in her demonstration.

Shortly thereafter the hearings were ended and police cleared the room.

In his testimony, Hathaway had named Representative Hamilton Fish of New York as identified with the Nazi movement in this country. Fish, who headed a congressional committee that investigated Communism and the Daily Worker several years ago, opposes recognition of Soviet Russia.

Chairman Dickstein brought Hathaway before the committee to produce the original of a letter read yesterday by a mysterious "Mr. X." The witness said one "Mr. Z," identified by him as a Nazi holding an important post in the organization in this country, turned the letter over to him on Oct. 2. The letter bore the name Walter Haag, previously described as an aid to Heinz Spanknobel, who Hathaway said was the "preacher" of the Nazi organization in the United States.

Refusing to disclose "Mr. Z's" name, Hathaway testified that this Nazi had become disillusioned after it was found in Germany that he had Jewish ancestry and that his parents had been persecuted and later fled to Austria.

A. Menendez, assistant director of the North German Lloyd Shipping Line, Hathaway said, was reported to be the "real brains" of the Nazi movement in the United States.

Hathaway brought in the name of Fish in discussing the authenticity of the Haag letter, which purported to discuss activities of the Nazis in the United States.

He said that a meeting of Nazi leaders in New York last Saturday was attended by Spanknobel, now a fugitive from justice on a Federal warrant, and "also was attended by Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. of New York City."

SECRETARY WHO OFFERED TO QUIT PUT ON COMPLETE LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Requires Rest, Change of Climate and Treatment for Throat Infection Which Has Had Specialists' Constant Attention.

FARM CREDIT MAN WILL DO THE WORK

He Will Be Appointed to Vacated Undersecretaryship—President Roosevelt Thanks Acheson and Praises His Services.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—President Roosevelt announced today that Secretary of the Treasury Woodin would begin a "complete leave of absence" at the end of the week and that pending his return, Henry Morgenthau Jr., would be acting Secretary of the Treasury.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Dean Acheson has resigned, and Morgenthau will be appointed to that post.

Woodin tendered his resignation to the President several days ago, but Roosevelt declined to accept it, suggesting instead that Woodin be completely freed of all governmental responsibilities while he takes a complete rest. Woodin has been suffering from a throat infection, which has required constant treatment by New York specialists.

Resignation Offered and Refused.

During his absence, Woodin will accept no remuneration from the Government. In testament of his unaccepted resignation, Woodin said he had attempted to stay away from his desk of late and so far as possible recuperate from his ailment.

He added, however, that he was unable to do this fully, and that since his physicians had ordered rest and a change of climate, he was submitting his resignation.

In reply, the President said that "the first consideration" was Woodin's "complete recuperation." Since Woodin could not attend his duties, the President suggested that he take a "complete leave of absence" and "do all you can to get full health and strength, without any responsibility or thought of work."

Morgenthau has been at the head of the Farm Credit Administration. Recently he was given a prominent part in working out administration monetary policies and placed on the committee which finally fixes the price at which the Reconstruction Corporation makes purchases of newly mined domestic gold.

President Roosevelt today expressed great satisfaction with the services he had rendered and spoke of his regret that Acheson was leaving the Government.

No Explanation on Acheson.

No official explanation of Undersecretary Acheson's resignation was made. However, it appeared that he left to make room for Morgenthau. The President could not appoint Morgenthau Secretary without completely displacing Woodin. Similarly, he could not name him to a post below that of Acheson. The impression given in official quarters was that Acheson, learning of the situation, withdrew to make room for Morgenthau.

In connection with today's Treasury changes, observers were inclined to place some importance on the White House visit last night of Bernard M. Baruch, friend of the President. It was reported that there was extensive talk last year of his being offered a post in the Cabinet. The discussion between him and the President lasted more than an hour.

WOODIN TENDERED HIS RESIGNATION TO THE PRESIDENT SEVERAL DAYS AGO, BUT ROOSEVELT DECLINED TO ACCEPT IT, SUGGESTING INSTEAD THAT WOODIN BE COMPLETELY FREED OF ALL GOVERNMENTAL RESPONSIBILITIES WHILE HE TAKES A COMPLETE REST. MISSOURIAN, CONVICTED IN EAGLES LOTTERY CASE, REPORTS TO MARSHAL IN NEW YORK.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Conrad H. Mann, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, surrendered to United States Marshal Raymond P. Mulligan soon after 11 a. m. today to begin a five-month sentence on a conviction that he took part in a lottery held by the Fraternal Order of Eagles. Mann reported at the Marshal's office in the Federal Building. He had arrived in New York about an hour and a half earlier.

Arrangements for his surrender were made by his attorney, Clyde Taylor of Kansas City. Mann was started at 3 p. m. by motor bus to the Federal house of detention on the lower West Side in New York City.

In addition to the sentence of five months, Mann must pay a fine of $10,000 before he can be discharged from the house of detention. With good behavior, his term may be cut to about three months, Federal officials say.

Mann broke down in the Marshal's office. Tears came to his eyes. Lester H. Lobbs of Washington and Taylor, attorneys for the Eagles, assisted him to Mulligan's private office, where they found chairs. Lobbs described Mann as "all broken up."

Mann applied to President Roosevelt for a pardon at the same time as Frank E. Haring, editor of the Eagles Magazine, who was convicted with him. President Roosevelt yesterday released Haring from serving a prison sentence but required that he pay a $2000 fine.

Bernard C. McGuire, convicted with Mann in the Eagles case, surrendered and was sent to Leavenworth, Pa., where there is a Federal penitentiary. His sentence is a year and a day.

UNION CO. NOW PAID FOR CURRENT

Officials Indicate They Will Try to Adjust Present Rates Before Considering Further Steps.

Ralf Toensfeldt, chief electrical engineer of the Department of Public Utilities, today made a report, requested by Mayor Dickmann and Director Wall, as to the saving which the city could effect in the cost of electric current, by furnishing its own current for the lighting of downtown streets, the Plaza group of public buildings, and City Hospital. The city now pays the Union Electric Co. for this lighting.

Toensfeldt estimates that a municipal lighting plant, if established in the Municipal Service Building at Twelfth and Broadway and Clark avenue, would save the city $38,905 a year, if the cost of land and building, and the franchise taxes now paid by Union Electric, on this business, are not figured in.

If the taxes referred to, and the cost of land and building, which the city now owns and uses, are taken into the figuring, the net saving of the city would be $4314 a year, Toensfeldt estimates.

Heating Estimate Given.
The present buildings of the Plaza group and of City Hospital are included in the estimates. The present buildings of the Plaza group are heated from the Service Building, so the additions to the present heating requirements would be the Hospital and the new Municipal Auditorium.

No detailed estimate has been made on the cost of a municipal plant which would light all city streets and all public buildings within the city limits, but Toensfeldt makes a rough estimate that it would cost $4,000,000 to build a plant of the cost of a municipal plant which would supply private light and power consumers.

Director Wall said he would study the report, and expected to discuss it with the Mayor. Before committing themselves to a municipal plant, the city officials will probably try to learn whether a re-adjustment of the present charges of the Union Electric could be obtained. The company recently gave rate-dance consumers a reduction, but its rate to the city for lighting streets and public buildings is unchanged.

The Detailed Figures.
Toensfeldt's detailed figures on the estimated cost of a municipal plant, and the present expenditure under existing conditions, are:

Investment cost of proposed plant, including generating units, foundation and building changes, piping, switchboard, boilers, cooling tower, distribution system, transformers, and other necessary items, $777,000.

Annual cost of generation at proposed plant, including coal, labor, evaporation losses and fixed charges, $186,516.

Present annual cost for same service under private contract, including present City Hospital generation cost and estimated cost for Municipal Auditorium, $205,421.

Annual saving shown by subtracting estimated annual cost from present annual cost, $38,905.

Investment costs not included in previous figures, for land and building, $182,000. (Land and building are the same now owned and used by the city, the Municipal Service Building.)

Annual cost items not included in previous estimates, fixed charges, $21,384; franchise taxes, $12,207; sum of these, $33,591.

HUSBAND VALUES HER AFFECTIONS AT $25,000

MISS IDELLA TAYLOR.

TESTIFIES IN $25,000 ALIENATION SUIT

Gordon B. Taylor Says Wife Refused to Live With Him.

Testimony in the $25,000 alienation of affections suit of Gordon B. Taylor, unemployed civil engineer, against his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Koenenman, began in Circuit Judge McElhinney's court at Clayton today.

Taylor testified he was a frequent visitor at the Koenenman home, 436 East Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves, for three years prior to his marriage to Idella Koenenman in November, 1930. The bride's mother and her parents attended the wedding, which took place at Jerseyville, Ill.

Wife Goes to Florida.
Taylor said he and his wife set up housekeeping in Maplewood and later at 6836 Alamo avenue, Clayton, and "got along splendidly" on his salary of $115 a month. In September, 1931, his wife informed him that she wanted to go to Florida with her mother. He protested, he said, but Mrs. Koenenman took his wife and their infant son, Gordon Jr., to Florida for the winter. He broke up housekeeping and went to live with his parents at 460 Ivanhoe avenue, Webster Groves.

The witness said his wife did not return to St. Louis until the following May and, although he offered to furnish her with a home, she and the baby went to the Koenenman home. "When I called there to see my baby he cried—I was a total stranger to him," Taylor testified.

Divorce Suit Pending.
With regard to subsequent visits to see his child, Taylor asserted he was required to ask Mrs. Koenenman's permission to take the baby out. Describing Mrs. Koenenman's treatment of him, Taylor said, "she was cool, and sometimes ignored my greetings."

Mrs. Taylor's suit for divorce, filed in June, 1932, are charging general indignities and non-support, is pending at Clayton. In reply to questions by his attorney, Taylor said he still loves his wife and is willing to live with her. Taylor is 28, his wife 24.

Swim Ashore After Backfire Ignites $3200 Vessel.

John T. Nicholson, 5616 Gates avenue, and Angelo Rosegrant, 7940 Natural Bridge road, Normandy, were forced to swim ashore yesterday when their 28-foot speedboat caught fire on the Mississippi River at the foot of Humboldt street.

The owners said they were going upstream when the motor backfired. The craft, made of mahogany and valued at $3200, was destroyed.

SCHOOL BOND ISSUE BEATEN

A proposed $250,000 bond issue for new school buildings was defeated by voters of the Kirkwood School District yesterday, 1278 for to 1001 against. A two-thirds majority was required.

The district was to have sought an additional grant of $75,000 from Federal public works funds. Additions to five buildings and two new structures were planned.

JAKE THE BARBER IN COURT AT HAMM KIDNAPING TRIAL

He Is Expected to Identify Three of Defendants as Occupants of House With Touhy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 15.—John (Jake) the Barber, Factor of Chicago, himself a kidnaping victim, was in the courtroom today as a Government witness in the trial of Roger Touhy and three henchmen for the abduction of William Hamm Jr.

Assistant Attorney-General Joseph B. Keenan had been contemplating calling Factor for the last three days, but was hesitating because of uncertainty as to the competence of Factor's testimony.

Because the Government's case has failed convincingly to identify any of the four defendants, it was resolved late last night to bring Factor here. The millionaire ex-barber is said to be able to identify three of the defendants—Edward McFadden, Gus Schaefer, and William Sharkey—as occupants of a house with Touhy immediately after the Hamm kidnaping. Touhy and seven others, including the three present co-defendants, are under indictment for the abduction of Factor a month after the Hamm kidnaping.

Factor himself is fighting extradition to England, where he is charged with having lured British investors of $7,000,000 in a stock promotion scheme.

W. W. Dunn, sales manager of the Thos. Hamm & Co., of which Hamm is president, testified about the ransom notes he received from the kidnapers. One demanded $100,000. Another threatened death to both Dunn and Hamm unless payment was made immediately and warned the ransom would be increased to $150,000 if the demands were not immediately met, he said.

Dunn told how, unarmed and alone, he went out on a highway at night and delivered the $100,000 for Hamm's release. Walter C. Bowick, a printer, pointed out Willie Sharkey as the driver of the car in which Hamm was taken to a hideout where he was held almost four days. Then he pointed out Gustave (Gloomy Gus) Schaefer and Eddie (Father) McFadden as men in the automobile.

CHEROKEE BANK HEADS GET 10 YEARS FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

Humphrey street. Mueller was in the foundry business for many years before he aided in organizing the bank of which he became president. He was a director of St. Louis Council of the Boy Scouts of America and its chairman for the South Side. He was a director also of the Provident Association and of the Boys' Club, Ninth street and Park avenue. Two years ago he was an unsuccessful candidate for the Board of Education, and last spring was again a candidate, but withdrew after the shortage at the bank was discovered. He had been endorsed by the Public Schools' Patrons' Alliance.

The bank, at Jefferson avenue and Cherokee street, was one of those which did not reopen after the bank holiday in March. Mueller was at first named its conservator, but when the shortage in its books was discovered he was replaced by Jack Bernhardt as receiver and the indictment followed.

Stockholders of the bank, which was capitalized at $200,000, are being required to pay an assessment of 100 per cent on their holdings under the old double liability provision of national bank charters.

Depositors, who had $1,193,832 in the bank, have not yet received any payment from the receiver.

THREE BURNED IN BUS FIRE

Two men and a woman were injured when a Missouri Pacific bus caught fire and burned on Highway 61 near Imperial, Mo., today. The bus was destroyed.

The injured: Miss Vera Meyers, St. Louis, burned about the body; Peter Stein, 1257 Aubert avenue, burned on the back, and Robert Craft, Festus, Mo., burned on the hand when he attempted to put out the fire. All were taken by ambulance to Missouri Pacific Hospital here. Craft was dismissed after first aid treatment and Stein later went to his home.

Man Killed, Wife Hurt in Crash.
HAYS, Kan., Nov. 15.—William H. Clark, 57 years old, a Milwaukee, Wis., business man, was killed late yesterday when his motor car overturned near Colyer, Kan. Mrs. Clark suffered serious injuries. Walter Gore, St. Joseph, Mo., and Miss Rose Rogers, Denver, Colo., other occupants of the car, were injured slightly.

City-Wide Minimum Wage Scale for Domestic Urged

Plan for $1.50 a Day or $5 a Week in Addition to Carfare Discussed at Woman's Conference.

Feasibility of establishing a city-wide minimum wage schedule for domestic employees of $1.50 and carfare a day or $5 and carfare a week was discussed today at the second Women's Conference on Household Employment Relations, held at Sheldon Memorial under auspices of the employment department of the Urban League of St. Louis.

Such a scale became effective this month at the Urban League Employment Bureau for Women, but other employment bureaus have not adopted a policy of refusing to send job seekers to employers unless the minimum scale is promised.

The scale was adopted by the Urban League on the basis of a report by a Committee on Household Problems, headed by Mrs. George Gellhorn, who presided today, and created after a recent mass meeting of domestic employees.

Speakers, including representatives of other employment agencies, favored the idea of the minimum wage schedule but called attention to factors which might hinder adoption.

It was pointed out many domestic workers are employed in the homes of employed women whose incomes have been so reduced they would be unable to pay their servants even the minimum. The law of supply and demand, it was conceded, works against the scale, because there are many applicants for every job. Fear was expressed, too, that commercial employment agencies might disrupt a fixed wage scale.

Recognizing that emergency conditions exist no attempt was made to suggest a minimum scale for employees who live on the premises. Mrs. Gellhorn, who participated in the first conference in 1930, pointed out the domestic servant picture has since been reversed; at that time there were more positions than applicants.

Investigation by her committee, she disclosed, indicates that it would not be practical to form a union of household employees. Mrs. Jennie C. Buckner, head of the Urban League Women's Employment Bureau, said placements have not fallen off since the wage scale policy was adopted by the bureau.

Presenting the viewpoint of the Negro domestic of today, Mrs. Buckner said the stigma of "dirty work" attached to domestic ser-

CLARK TRIES TO FORCE TWO OFFICIALS TO QUIT

Using Pressure to Get District Attorney and Marshal to Resign.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Bldg.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—United States Senator Bennett C. Clark (Dem.) Missouri, is trying to bring about the voluntary resignations of two Republicans holding important Federal offices at St. Louis—District Attorney Louis H. Breuer and Marshal Theodore W. Hukriede. If the two should resign before expiration of their terms, appointments would be available for Democrats.

Attorney-General Cummings sent a letter to Marshal Hukriede last Saturday requesting his resignation. This followed a request of Senator Clark several weeks ago that the Department of Justice investigate the fitness of Hukriede for the place. Clark pointed out that a prisoner had escaped from Hukriede last year.

The prisoner was Stanley Anderson, known as "The Swede," who speeded through a window of a speeding train last Jan. 23 near New Orleans, where Marshal Hukriede was taking him to be tried for the killing of a prohibition informer. He was shot and killed the next day when he tried to escape from Louisiana State officers who had found him.

So far as is known here, no formal charges have been filed against Hukriede. If Hukriede should refuse to give up the position it would require an executive order to oust him, as he was commissioned by appointment of President Hoover for a four-year term expiring in 1936.

The Department of Justice has not taken action in the case of District Attorney Breuer, whose four-year term expires next June, but Senator Clark has written to the Department, calling attention to the "almost continuous absence from St. Louis" of Breuer.

"Mr. Breuer is a man of high character and a good lawyer," Clark wrote, "well qualified for the position which he holds, but in view of the prospect of retirement from the district attorneyship at the end of his term next year, he has evidently been trying to resume his practice at Rolla to the extent that he devotes only from one to two days a week to the duties of his office in St. Louis."

EIGHT QUESTIONED IN INQUIRY INTO WOMAN'S MURDER

Men Who Associated With Mrs. Mabel Thomas Are Able to Throw No Light on Killing.

Associates of Mrs. Mabel Thomas, 30-year-old door-to-door magazine saleswoman who was found shot and slugged to death Monday morning in a field south of the University City golf course, were rounded up by the police yesterday afternoon and last night for questioning.

Immediate aim of the interrogation was to trace the movements of Mrs. Thomas after 9 o'clock Sunday night when she left a saloon at 4303 Olive street, alone.

In questioning eight men arrested during the roundup, detectives found ample evidence to confirm statements of friends of the murdered woman that, while a hard worker during the day, she drank rather heavily at nights and frequented speakeasies. All of her man friends readily admitted they had gone out with her, one as recently as Saturday night, but none gave any information throwing light directly on her movements Sunday evening. All the men questioned in the case were married.

An open coroner's verdict of homicide was returned at an inquest today in Pine Lawn.

Funeral services for Mrs. Thomas will be held tomorrow or Friday at Licking, Mo., where her family lived before moving a month ago to Long Beach, Cal. Directions that she be buried there were included in a telegram sent yesterday by her mother, Mrs. Mamie Mansfield, from Long Beach, to Mrs. Genevieve Mitchell, proprietor of the boarding house at 507A Whittier street, where Mrs. Thomas lived.

Mrs. Mansfield directed that the funeral costs be kept as low as possible and that the bills be sent to her for payment.

Married 11 years ago to Earl Thomas, itinerant photograph salesman, Mrs. Thomas left him about seven years ago. Thomas, now proprietor of a restaurant and bar at 801 South Fourth street, told policemen he had not seen her since that time and was unable to give any information about her associates.

TWO STORE CHAINS CITED FOR MILK PRICE CUTTING

Ordered to Show Cause Why Licenses in Philadelphia Area Should Not Be Revoked.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Farm administrators yesterday cited two chain store systems to show cause why their licenses to distribute milk in the Philadelphia area should not be suspended or revoked.

The citations named the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. and the American Stores Co., which were charged with having violated the retail price, established in the Philadelphia milk shed. The retail price fixed in the Philadelphia area for Class B milk, the type most commonly sold, was 11 cents a quart.

The Farm Administration yesterday revoked licenses of two other distributors for selling below the agreed price and for having paid farmers less than the minimum provided by the agreement.

Justice Frederick P. Close reserved decision on a defense motion to dismiss the case on the ground there was no cause of action, but the Justice remarked that he never heard of a parallel case.

CHILD SUES MAN WHO, HE CHARGES, BROKE UP PARENTS

Asks for $50,000 Damages for Alleged Alienation of Mother's Affections.

By the Associated Press.
WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 15.—A question of the right of a child to sue for the alleged alienation of affections of one of the parents is raised in a suit filed in Supreme Court here today. The case is said to be without precedent. Some lawyers were inclined to agree that the child of a wrecked marriage might easily be actually damaged, but there was considerable doubt that the child had any legal cause of action.

The suit on file is that of James Morrow, now 21 years old, against Frederick Yannantuono, wealthy undertaker of Mount Vernon. Morrow asks for $50,000 damages, alleging that in 1928, when he was 17, Yannantuono induced Mrs. Morrow to leave her husband, with the result that the family was broken up. He says his mother, Mrs. Nellie Morrow, now is living in Great Barrington, that he does not know the whereabouts of his father, Charles Morrow, but believes he is somewhere in New York state, and that his brother and sister also are separated and he does not know where they are.

Justice Frederick P. Close reserved decision on a defense motion to dismiss the case on the ground there was no cause of action, but the Justice remarked that he never heard of a parallel case.

IRONWORKERS' DEATHS HELD TO BE ACCIDENT

Witnesses at Inquest Tell How Girder Gave Way Killing
Two at Federal Bldg.

A coroner's verdict of accident was returned today in the deaths of Carl Berger and Henry Kimmerling, steelworkers killed yesterday when a second floor girder of the new Federal Building gave way, dropping the men and 22 tons of steel 60 feet to the basement.

Testimony was that the girder had been bolted several days ago to others forming part of the second story floor, as support for a platform built to store beams to be used in construction of the upper stories. It was to be removed when the need for storage space ended.

Three beams had been placed on the platform, and when the fourth one was let down on it by a block and tackle, the girder broke loose, shearing off cleanly the bolts which secured it. The witnesses were not asked how many bolts had held the girder in place, but in response to questions said it was fastened in the usual manner.

John S. Ware, 4135 Labadie avenue, who saved himself by running back on the platform when he heard the girder begin to break loose, testified the fourth beam was let down gently, and gave his opinion that its weight was sufficient to cause the girder to shear the bolts which held it.

The signal man, Louis Karcher, 4440A Farin avenue, and the hoisting engineer, Ellis G. Henson, of Pine Lawn, also testified the beam was let down slowly.

There was no testimony on how many beams were to have been stored on the platform nor explanation of why the girder should give way when the fourth one was placed on it, and this line of inquiry was not pursued by Deputy Coroner Sweeney nor Assistant Circuit Attorney McLaughlin, who assisted in conducting the inquest.

James Dempsey of the Dempsey Inspection Co., employed by the Government to inspect the steel work as it was erected, was not called as a witness. Dempsey was present, however, when the accident occurred.

Berger lived at 4211 Westminter place and Kimmerling near Bellefontaine and Chambers roads, St. Louis County. They were employed by the Koch Erection Co. of New York, sub-contractors for the steelwork.

Ad Club Puts Mayor's Policy on Its Gridiron

At Annual Dinner Goads Him in Skit and Lets Him Reply to Appeal of St. Louis for "Work Not Soup."

Hamlet once tried it on the King. So the Advertising Club of St. Louis had plenty of precedent for the robust way it handled Mayor Dickmann at its second annual Gridiron dinner at Hotel Jefferson last night.

As with Hamlet, the play was the thing wherewith the Advertising Club sought to catch the conscience and appeal to the civic spirit of the Mayor, who was seated near the center of the head table. The club's players staged scenes which showed the Mayor, in his office, listening to the appeal of Saint Louis for "work, not soup."

Saint Louis, who wore the conventional knightly armor, was accompanied by the Wolf, representing unemployment and hunger, and reinforcing the demand for work, which the Mayor was told, might well be done on the river front.

Covering the Water Front. "Let us cover the water front," the Saint urged. "Cover it with modern highways, with grass, with buildings. Uncle Sam will furnish us $13,000,000, and I'll underwrite the rest. Don't be so wrapped up in the real estate business that you can't hear the appeal for employment."

In a previous scene, the visit of the Mayor to Secretary Ickes, in charge of the public works program at Washington, had been shown, and the Secretary had used $40,000,000 for St. Louis' needs. With this in mind, the Mayor was pictured as hesitating, and soliloquizing Hamlet-fashion, "To issue bonds or not, that is the question."

The scene progressed to show the petitioners having their way, and the Mayor joining hands with them, while all chanted: "We'll cover the water front!" But a moment later this was over to have been just a dream, and the Mayor's impersonator, rubbing his eyes, exclaimed, "That's what I get for going on one of Charlie Hay's wild parties."

Both the topic and the manner of its treatment appealed to the gathering, and the bit of drama went over big, winning applause which marked it as the hit of the evening, quite overshadowing the nine skits which had preceded it, on local and national themes.

Dickmann Replies to Attack. Mayor Dickmann, unlike Hamlet's royal stepfather, got right up and talked back at the players and the assembled members and guests of the Advertising Club. He did not speak of unemployment, but of the water front part of the proposal, which he ridiculed.

"I have learned here," the Mayor-impersonator said, "that public improvements can be financed with wind, that taxes can be paid with jokes, that mortgages can be lifted by cartoons and editorials, and that we have a Brain Trust competent to handle all our city problems."

"We may wreck home owners, and cripple business, but to hell with all of them, so long as we cover the water front. I have thought Forest Park, Tower Grove Park and our other parks were places of beauty, but I was wrong. I shall put a settee somewhere out on the water front, and spend my old age watching cranes and dead animals floating down on the muddy river."

"The future of St. Louis is wrapped up in the water front, and the catfish industry. Let's bring the suckers in the river close to the suckers on the bank. And all this time I had been supposing it was a beer front, not a water front, that St. Louis most desired."

Bottles for Souvenirs. More than 300 members and guests of the Advertising Club attended the dinner, which was a formal-dress affair, with elaborate settings. Each guest's name was printed on the silver cover of his menu, and on the box which contained his souvenir, a small bottle with a foreign label on which the word "Arguendante" was noticeable. The Spanish dictionary says this means "brandy."

The stage acts were directed by L. A. Zimmermann, and 50 members of the Advertising Club and of the Junior Advertising Club were the actors and authors. Larry Dickmann had the role of Mayor Dickmann.

The acts were interspersed with the serving of dinner courses, so that the eating and the acting continued until nearly 11 o'clock. "Propbet and Loes," the first of the skits, was about baseball and the Cardinals' sad finish after Branch Rickey's bright hopes. "We Gotta Have a Finale" was the attempt of Republican party strategists to find an issue for the 1934 campaign. Dr. E. B. Clements, Republican National Committeeman, was in the audience.

"Taking Off the Receiver" showed how one small law office can be the headquarters for an unlimited number of business firms in receivership. The head receiver complained that, having given managerial jobs to all his relatives and friends, he was obliged to seek new assistants from among the general public. A soda dispenser was his selection to manage a closed bank.

Kidnaping, on a big-business scale, with easy payments and hotel accommodations for kidnaped persons, was shown in "No Carrying Charge." A ransom victim was dismissed with a pious admonition to "stick to the straight and narrow path."

The Baron and the Big Bad Wolf. The Baron Munchausen, in a dialect recital, complained of the absence of Gov. Park, after his presence had been indicated by signs outside saying "Park Here." An NRA sketch showed Capital and Labor, both in feminine garb, pulling each other's hair and crushing the innocent public, caught between them. "When Doctors Disagree" was about state affairs and the extra session, with Dr. Park, Dr. Senate and Dr. House in a stormy and fruitless consultation over the case of Miss Ourl.

Of course there was a "Big Bad Wolf" act. The three little pigs were lawyers, and two of their houses, bearing the names of "Kidnaping" and "Ambulance Chasing," fell in. But the third house, marked "Thomasson Case," stood up against all the huffing and puffing of their adversary, and the pigs were safe.

In "The Cavern of Cast-off Customs," Republican leaders and discredited financiers were gathered, and the final entrant was the figure of Prohibition.

With all this going on at the stage end of the dining room, and with the Mayor's speech following, it was 11:17 before the guest speaker, Strickland Gillilan, got the floor at the other end of the room. But the Washington humorist was fresh as a daisy, and everybody stayed through his 40-minute talk, which was a succession of laughs at national figures.

Gillilan's Picture of Nation. "Hoover made monkeys of us, and Roosevelt planted trees for us to climb into," Gillilan said. "Mr. Roosevelt, on his inauguration day, went to church and consecrated himself, but Jim Farley is still running around utterly unconsecrated."

"The Mayor of New York, La Guardia, is going to raise so much hell that they'll make him plow under one-third of it."

"Al Capone is blue these days—disgusted when he reads of all the big rackets that were going on, and that he didn't get into."

"An empty taxicab drove up to the Senate, and Huey Long got out."

"Wherever I go somebody asks who is Vice-President now. It is still John Garner, and I understand he is to be wired for sound in January."

"Senator Borah is a very able man. Yes, he is a variable man. He might be very useful if he ever followed up anything after it has gone off the first page. Some golf instructor ought to teach him to follow through. As it is, he has not enough influence with himself to control his own vote, and when he rides horseback, it is a surprise to see him going in the same direction as the horse."

"Try to find out what this gold-buying program is about, and Mr. Roosevelt will refer you to Jesse Jones, Mr. Jones will refer you to Prof. Warren, and Prof. Warren gives no interviews."

Gillilan concluded with his most famous bit of verse, "Off Agin, On Agin, Flanigan."

E. H. McReynolds, president of the club, and H. J. Echele, leader of the Haymakers, a group within the club, took turns presiding at the dinner. Some of those at the head table were: Henry W. Kiel, Morton J. May, Frank M. Mayfield, Mgr. P. P. Crane, Sidney Maestri, Aaron Fuller, John G. Lonsdale, Walter B. Weisenburger, Charles M. Hay, Chief of Police Gerk, the Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, E. Lansing Ray and Walter W. Head.

AIRSHIP MACON GOES TO SEA FOR FIRST NAVY MANEUVERS

Big Dirigible Co-operating With Blue Fleet "Attacking" San Diego-San Luis Obispo Area. ABOARD THE U. S. CRUISER CHESTER, OFF THE CALIFORNIA COAST, Nov. 15.—The U. S. Macon had its first experience with the United States fleet at sea in maneuvers today. The big dirigible moved with a fleet formed as a

Blue force of superior power in attack against the area between San Luis Obispo and San Diego, defended by a fast-striking force of inferior power, designated as the Brown fleet.

The Macon, flying above the clouds, sent out scout planes. Scouting and attack planes from the aircraft carrier Lexington were matched against the Macon.

Farm Strike Relaxed. ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 15.—Minnesota farm holiday leaders last night voted to continue their marketing strike with increased picketing, but ordered some lifting of marketing restrictions on cream and butter. The meeting decided that farmers would not be interfered with in marketing cream or creameries in manufacturing butter provided the butter was stored. Numerous requests from farmers who needed funds received from cream sales to purchase clothes and other necessities caused the leaders' action.

OFFERS ALIBI DEFENSE IN KILLING ON BUS

W. H. Davis Expected to Repudiate Confession of Part in Patrolman's Murder.

An alibi defense was offered today by William H. Davis in his trial before Circuit Judge Eader on a charge of murder in the death of Patrolman Adolph Kreidler, who was shot Sept. 28, 1932, in a holdup on top of a South Grand boulevard motorbus.

Introduction of the alibi defense indicated that Davis intended to repudiate written and oral statements of complicity in the holdup which the State introduced before it closed its case this afternoon. The State's evidence concluded with testimony by two newspaper reporters that Davis made his admissions freely and without compulsion.

Davis' alibi was based on the testimony of Mrs. Pearl O'Farrell, 1721 South Twelfth boulevard, that he was at the O'Farrell home, then at 1400 South Ninth street, from 7 p. m. until late at night on the day of the murder, which occurred about 10:45 p. m. On cross-examination Mrs. O'Farrell said she had not seen her husband for about a year and had visited the defendant several times in the city jail. Davis purported admission of guilt, as introduced by the State, were that he and two other men followed the bus after Harvey, the slayer, boarded it to rob the conductor.

Harvey got off at Osceola street "after he heard a noise like an explosion or a backfire," Davis was quoted as saying. Davis continued that he and the other two turned into a side street and drove away. Arrested at Bowling Green, Mo., a week later, he denied any direct connection with the murder.

Prior to introduction of the statement, policemen related that Davis also made an oral admission of guilt covering the same ground.

Policemen also told how they traced the slayer through a cleaners' mark in a hat which he threw into an ashpit in an alley along with his revolver. For the murder, Harvey was sentenced to a life term in the penitentiary. Marion M. Stephens, arrested in the case, was acquitted in a second trial after the jury has disagreed in his first. He charged the police had used third-degree methods in getting him to admit participation in the holdup. A fourth, Thomas Colby, is awaiting trial.

Washington (D. C.) Commissioners. WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—President Roosevelt has named George E. Allen, hotel man, and Melvin C. Hazen, surveyor of the city, as commissioners to govern the national capital.

BOARD STILL AGAINST BUILDING NEW SCHOOLS

Refuses to Reconsider Public Work Plan of H. P. Schroeder at Monthly Meeting.

An effort to renew discussion of the possibility of erecting new schools, with the aid of a Federal loan and grant, made by Henry P. Schroeder of the Board of Education at the board's monthly meeting last night, was unsuccessful. Hugh Miller, State engineer of the Federal Public Works Administration, was present at Schroeder's invitation to address the board, but did not talk.

Schroeder, whose proposal for a bond issue for new buildings was defeated by the board last month, said Miller did not remain because Schroeder would have had to get unanimous consent of the board to allow Miller to talk. This consent was not asked by Schroeder on the board floor, but a motion by him to invite Miller to address the board in the future failed for lack of a second.

Ben Weldie, chairman of the Building Committee, said if Miller was to be heard it should be at a special, informal meeting devoted to that purpose. Schroeder declared the discussion should be public. Dr. David C. Todd, president, suggested the question might be referred to the Finance Committee, which could propose inviting Miller to address the board if it saw fit. No action was taken on this.

The board is considering the possibility of asking for a Federal grant to help defray certain building repairs. It received and filed last night several letters from citizens commending Schroeder's bond proposal. One reason the board is shying away from a bond issue is the fact that it must submit the general school tax rate for the next four years to a vote next spring. Without approval of voters the rate could not exceed 60 cents on the $100. Dr. Todd told a Post-Dispatch reporter he favored asking for continuation of the present rate of 85 cents.

Recent agitation because Superintendent of Instruction Gerling failed to re-employ J. Clark Waldron as an evening high school teacher, after Waldron had been arrested in connection with picketing in the garment workers' strike, was ignored by the board. It received and filed a protest against Gerling's action from the Socialist City Committee.

A proposal by Schroeder, which he explained as intended to abolish the auditing and supply departments of the board, was rejected by the board. He was made chairman of the auditing and supplies committee last month.

PAGE 8A RESCINDS VOTE FOR BIGGER LOBBY INQUIRY BOARD

House Holds Up Till Friday Action on Attempt to Take It Out of Control of Lay and Maxey.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
 A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 15.— Supporters of Gov. Park in his fight on the public utility lobby at the Capitol won an inning this afternoon in the House of Representatives after a temporary check a few hours earlier.

On motion of Representative Lay of Warsaw, a member of the committee appointed yesterday at the request of the Governor, to investigate the lobby, the House reconsidered the vote by which it had adopted a motion by Representative Keating, Democratic floor leader, to increase the size of the committee from three to seven. The effect of Keating's motion was to take control of the investigation out of the hands of Representative Maxey, the chairman, and Lay.

Wins by Majority of Nine.

At the afternoon session Lay offered his motion to rescind the action on the ground that no member of the committee was present when Keating and Speaker Meredith rushed through the Keating motion.
 The House supported Lay by a vote of 54 to 45. The Keating motion will be taken up again Friday when Maxey returns to the House.

Keating's earlier motion was offered after visits to the Speaker by Keating and by Anthony A. Buford, representative of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing interests who also during the regular session was active in support of the "mystery bill" introduced by his father Senator Buford, and advocated by the Union Electric Light & Power Co.

Park Sends for Speaker.

Gov. Park, who had not heretofore appeared publicly as officially interested in the resolution, sent for the Speaker as soon as he learned of the changed condition of the investigation. He refused to say the exact purpose of the summons, but the inference conveyed at the executive offices was that "the Governor had on his fighting clothes" and expected to have a talk with the Speaker about the makeup of the committee.

Meredith disclosed today that in naming Representatives Maxey, Lay and Pressley on the originally appointed committee he had acted at the specific request of the Governor, who has publicly complained of the activity of the public utility lobby against his public works program to permit small municipalities to build municipal utility plants.

Protest by Lay Fails.

In offering his motion to enlarge the committee from three to seven, Keating acted over the protest of Representative Lay, who requested him to withhold it until the return of Maxey, who was away from Jefferson City on a one-day business trip.

Keating's only explanation was that there had been criticism from House members of the size of the committee and that there had been complaints that all the members were considered anti-utility.

The motion was put and rushed through while Representative Hodges of Callaway County, Speaker pro-tem, was vainly trying to obtain recognition from Speaker Meredith. Hodges said later that he had intended to raise the point of order that the oral motion was out of order, and that under parliamentary rules the resolution adopted yesterday could be changed only by adoption of a motion to reconsider the vote by which it was passed, then amend it and repass
 it. After the action had been taken Meredith said that Keating was the principal "moving agent" in enlarging the committee. He said Keating had protested to him and against the committee he had appointed, and that he had told Keating that he had named Maxey, Lay and Pressley at the express request of the Governor.

The Speaker and Buford had also called on him and raised a question as to the propriety of the appointment of Lay, who, Buford said, voted for the Speaker, was antagonistic to the utilities. Buford also called his attention, the Speaker said, to the fact that Maxey was the author of the bill in the regular session to prohibit utilities from selling appliances, which was opposed by the representative of the Union Electric Light and Power

 Co., and those of other utilities.

While the Governor evaded questions asked him this morning as to his plans, there was a report, considered reliable, that the opposition to his municipal utility bills had brought the Governor to a decision to make them the most important features of his legislative program next to the sales tax to provide funds for unemployment relief.

 It is even said that the Governor had virtually reached a conclusion to take a hand in the liquor legislation if representatives of the brewing and liquor interests do not keep their hands off his utility legislation.

Charges Against Davis Dropped.
 NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Outstanding charges against United States Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania, in connection with an alleged lottery operated by the Order of Moose, were nolle prossed today.
 A similar case against Davis resulted in an acquittal Oct. 12. An indictment against the Western Union Telegraph Co., involving an alleged lottery by the Shrine order in 1932, also has been dropped.

Action Against Nelson, Inc., Restau-

 Suit for a receiver for Nelson Inc., a restaurant and catering business at 440 De Baliviera avenue, was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Edward J. Cain, secretary and a stockholder of the corporation. He says the concern has assets of $19,000, and while its liabilities are only $4150, some of its creditors are threatening to file suits on their claims, which at this time would be detrimental to the business.

The company, through its president, James Solari, filed an answer consenting to a receiver, and the Court was asked to appoint Solari

LINDBERGH ARRIVE AT LISBON AFTER FLIGHT FROM SPAIN

Crowds Cheer Flying Pair at Take-off From Caldeas de Tuy

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 15.—Col and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here at 12:45 p. m. today after a flight from Caldeas de Tuy, Spain, where they had been fog-bound for a day.

The Lindberghs had taken off from the Spanish village in the rain amid cheers of crowds lining both banks of the Minho River.

Col. Lindbergh told his well-wishers that he expected to spend several days here before starting for the Azores. It was said yesterday that he intended to fly back to the United States by way of the Azores and Bermuda.

NEW CIVIL WORKS PLAN OUTLINED TO GOVERNORS

$400,000,000 Fund Will Be Used to Hold Back Unemployment Till Major Projects Begin, Ickes Says

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes today characterized the new $400,000,000 civil works fund as a means for holding back the line of unemployment this winter until major projects under the $3,000,000,000 Public Works Administration can get fully under way.

GOLD CERTIFICATE HEARING

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Secretary of Treasury Woodin denied in the District of Columbia Supreme Court today the contention of Halsey K. Davis of New York that failure of the Treasury to redeem a $20 gold certificate in gold was unconstitutional.

The Government, answering mandamus proceeding brought by Davis to compel payment in gold, said it had insufficient information as to Davis' citizenship and as to his possession of the gold certificate and demand for payment. Davis has until Monday to file a counter pleading.

SHOOT AT BIRD, HITS BOY

Arthur Kohring Jr., 9 years old, 1136 Howell street, was shot in the left shoulder with a .32-caliber rifle by Roland Cruzan, 15, who fired at a bird in a vacant lot near Riverview drive and Edna avenue yesterday afternoon. He was treated at City Hospital.

Cruzan, reading at 874 Edna avenue, said he aimed at a bird on a stump, and failed to notice Arthur Kohring, who was crossing the lot.

Gone! That COLD—

When This Remedy Gets Busy!

A cold is no joke and Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine treats it as such. It goes right to the seat of the trouble, an infection within the system. Surface remedies are largely makeshift.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is speedy and effective because it is expressly a cold remedy and because it is direct and internal—COMPLETE! It does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and crummy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the treatment a cold requires, and anything less is taking chances. When you feel a cold coming on, get busy at once with Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. For sale by all druggists, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and resist a substitute.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping in the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 50c.

SHOT IN HAND WHEN HE RESISTS ROBBER

Illinois Man Saves Valuables in Holdup Attempt Near Union Station.

James Newsom, 22 years old, of Pittsfield, Ill., was shot in the left hand in resisting a robber near Union Station at 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

Newsom, who was treated at City Hospital, said he had gone for a walk while waiting for a train. At about a block from the station he was accosted by a Negro, who drew a revolver and ordered him into an alley. Newsom said he grappled with the holdup man and the revolver was discharged during the struggle. The Negro fled without loot.

Earl Clancey, taxicab driver, was robbed of $10 by a man, who entered the cab at Sixth and Pine streets last midnight and held him up at the point of a revolver on reaching Pennsylvania avenue and Elchberger street. After taking the money the robber walked away.

TALKS ON SAFEGUARDING MILK

Safe guards of a city milk supply were discussed by Dr. Charles E. North, New York expert on milk sanitation, at last night's meeting of St. Louis Medical Society.

Dr. North dwelt on the advantages of certified milk for the feeding of infants. He pointed out that some spore-forming organisms survive the pasteurization of ordinary market milk, and that the digestive tract is more sensitive in infants than in adults.

FINDS ECONOMIC ORDER HAS BEEN REVERSED

L. P. Ayres Cites Efforts to Boost Prices Before Demand for Goods Is Created.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 15.—Not yet, says Col. Leonard P. Ayres, economist and vice-president of the Cleveland Trust Co., has an "influence on prices" through the administration's manipulation of the dollar quotations for gold "become clearly established."

In his monthly business review Ayres declared that the "volume of industrial production has been declining during the last three months more rapidly than during any previous similar period of the depression."

He mentioned declines in iron and steel production, and in textiles, lumber, automobiles, leather goods, cement, tobacco goods and coal in support of his contention.

As general activity in trade and industry declines, Ayres pointed out, business men watch "with great interest" the administration's gold transactions.

"The economic basis for this procedure is quite simple," he said. "It has long been noted that in periods of advancing business activity increasing numbers of people demand larger amounts of goods, with the result that prices rise and so each dollar has a decreased purchasing power."

"The economists at Washington have undertaken to operate this train of developments in the reverse order."

"Each day they announce the dollar is worth less, so that it may appear to have a decreased buying power, with resulting higher price levels, so that more people will demand more goods and greater business activity will develop."

IT'S TRUE, MOTHER JONES! YOUR BISCUITS HAVE A DELICIOUS FLAVOR I JUST CAN'T GET IN MINE!

I DON'T KNOW WHAT IT IS—UNLESS IT'S THE FLOUR I USE. LET'S MAKE A BATCH TOGETHER.

I'VE USED ARISTOS FLOUR FOR YEARS—FOR EVERYTHING I BAKE...AND IT'S NEVER FAILED ME.

I'LL BET THAT'S IT! I'VE BEEN TRYING TO ECONOMIZE WITH A CHEAPER FLOUR!

THERE! YOU BAKED THEM ALL BY YOURSELF, DORA, AND I NEVER MADE BETTER ONES!

HOW PLEASED JIM WILL BE! I'M SO GLAD I CAME TO YOU—AND SO THANKFUL FOR YOUR RECIPE!

HERE'S THE NEVER-FAIL RECIPE FOR BISCUITS THAT DORA
NOW USES

QUICK BAKING POWDER BISCUITS

2½ cups sifted Aristos "Never-Fail" Flour
4½ level teaspoons baking powder
½ level teaspoon salt
1 cup sweet milk
¾ level tablespoons lard or butter

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut shortening in with knife or mixing spoon. Add sweet milk, stir briskly, roll out on floured board, cut biscuits and bake five to eight minutes in oven 450° F.

SUCCESS EVERY TIME—WITH THIS FLOUR

So many women complain that their baking is successful one time—and disappointing the next, even though made from the same recipe. And they never realize that it's because the flour they use is not dependable. It varies—and thus throws the whole recipe out of balance.

But with Aristos Flour you never risk this common cause of baking failure. For Aristos is always absolutely uniform—because of its unique milling process and the careful selection of the wheats from which it is made. That's why you can depend on Aristos to give you the same perfect results—"Never-Fail" results—every time that you bake! And that's true of everything you bake! For Aristos is a true All-Purpose Flour. Its choice wheats—a perfectly balanced blend—are just the right varieties to make Aristos the only flour you ever need in your home. Your biscuits (try the "Never-Fail" recipe we give you here) will be wonderfully light and delicious; your pies, tender and flaky; and your cakes, fluffy and fine-textured.

Aristos is a product of the Standard Milling Company, one of the world's largest millers. Get a bag—today. All grocers have it.

'FUNERAL ORATION' FOR CAPITALISM

Calls Insull and Kreuger Representatives of System — to Abolish House of Deputies.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Nov. 15.—Premier Mussolini, addressing the powerful National Council of Corporations, predicted the eventual abolition of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, announced that it was perfectly conceivable that the Council of Corporations should completely take the place of the chamber.
The speech he described as the funeral oration of capitalism and liberal institutions.
Mussolini said the chamber would be elected as usual next spring for another term of five years, but afterwards, he went on, the chamber would have to decide its own fate.
"The Chamber of Deputies has never pleased me," Mussolini went on. "In fact, this Chamber of Deputies is now anachronistic in its title. It is an institution which have found to be extraneous to our nationality and to our fashion-Fascists."

"We Bury Liberalism." Saying that "today we bury economic liberalism" and that "all socialist parties in Europe are frequently," Mussolini suggested that conditions for other nations if they wished to achieve a co-operative state.

First, a single party with perfect political discipline; Second, a totalitarian state and a transformed "potentializing" of interests and hopes of the people.
Third, a period of very high tension.

Mussolini denounced capitalism and named the late Ivar Kreuger Swedish match king, and Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities corporator, as representatives of the system.

The ideal of super-capitalism Mussolini said, would be the stan-dardization of the human mind to the level of the greatest.

The Council of Corporations, the chief body of the corporatist system, he said, must become a substitute for the chamber, but the proposed reform will not be made immediately because there is insufficient time before the March elections which, therefore, will be conducted as usual.

Europe Being Eclipsed.
The rise of the co-operative state he described as "coincident with the decadence of Socialism," and maintained that the new system could be adopted in foreign countries.

Turning to European affairs, Mussolini said the growth of the United States and Japan meant the eclipse of Europe.

"Europe," he added, however,
"could still progress if it would display even the least possible quantity of co-operation among its component nations."

He made a reference to the disarmament deadlock when he said that "progress cannot be achieved until great injustices have been paired."

His audience interpreted this a reference to the treaty of Versailles, to which Germany objected in its stand for equality.
He attacked League.

The speaker launched an attack on the League of Nations and asserted that more and more ho-pings are being directed toward the Power agreement, signed last year by Italy, France, Germany and Great Britain.

"The League has lost most of power," he maintained, pointing out that the first nation to port it had not joined the League.
He did not mention the United States by name. Russia, Germany and Japan have withdrawn, he pointed out.

"At present there is a great tension about the Four-Power pact he went on. "Nobody talks about it but everybody is thinking about it."

This remark was loudly applauded, the audience taking it as indication that Italy was concentrating efforts to bring the Power agreement under auspices of agreement.

Calling Chamber Arrogant.
Returning to the internal situation, Mussolini waxed bitter regarding the chamber and accused it of "arrogance." He said it "had the principal reason for its existence."

Then he turned his fire on capitalism which, he said, "lacks sense of humanity."
The Italian State, Mussolini said, "is a human state in which republic is not a diaphragm between the people and the state the entrance to the state."

adopt a compromise course, and be ready to stick to it for 10 or 15 years.

Members of the Eastern Indiana
Livestock Breeders' Association gave the Secretary an ovation as he completed his address which had White House approval.

The meeting formally opened the corn-bog production control program in Indiana.

Adjustments and a planned program will be essential whether the policy adopted is internationalism, nationalism or a combination of the two, he said, visualizing a standard of living "two or three times that which we had in 1929," as within the nation's reach should it pursue a definite plan.

Says Firmness Is Vital.

"The important thing," he said,
"once we have fully debated and understood the issues from a longtime point of view, is that we follow out the policy steadfastly and firmly in all its implications, even though certain people are hurt."

"If we follow the international program, we absolutely must receive great quantities of goods from abroad and must not be disturbed by the clamor of people who are making certain people are hurt."

"If we follow the national program, we must resolutely plan to keep 50,000,000 acres of land out of use, no matter how loud may be the outcry of certain carrying, handling, processing and exporting interests."

"If we decided to lower our tariff only part way and reduce our a range only part way, we must have the courage to do sufficient of both so that the job is done. No matter which of the three paths we follow, it is absolutely essential that our farmers and our laboring men learn to keep step with one another."

Refers to Senate Disclosures.

He asserted that "it is exceedingly important that business men never again take as large a percentage of the national income for profits as they did in 1929," adding:

"When the total capital of the country receives more than rather modest return, it interferes with the circuit flow of prosperity."

"To get this principle firmly fixed in our minds is more important than to pillory such individuals as have testified before the Senate Finance Committee as to the heartless way in which they betrayed the public and their own better selves in order to make a few million dollars."

"Many of them have posed as public graces, giving interviews, making speeches, and writing 'or the public press. I trust the influence of that kind of man in public life is gone forever. We do not want their leadership in either national or international planning."

Putting Human Rights First.

"We need a new type of business man who is willing to help in working out the national or international plans, whichever they may prove to be, and who is then willing to devote all his talents to bringing about a fair, workable relationship between the income of labor, the income of agriculture and at the

TELLS AUSTRIANS U. S. DOESN'T LIKE JEW PERSECUTORS

American Minister Says Antagonistic Policy Towards Race Will Alienate Sympathy for Nation.

By the Associated Press.
VIENNA, Nov. 15.—United States Minister George H. Earle III has spread the word informally through Austria that the Americans must not persecute the Jews at they would retain American sympathies.

"Ninety-five per cent of all Americans," Earle said, "are either fugitives from persecution or descendants from people who crossed the ocean because of religious or racial persecution. They cannot co-operate sympathetically with a country where people are persecuted on account of birth."

The United States, he declared, regards Austria's growth and independence sympathetically and is anxious to help Austria, but he advised against anti-Semitism.

Earle told newspapermen he had given this friendly warning in all provinces of Austria during a motor tour he started Oct. 28 for the purpose of getting acquainted with the country and its people.

"I was assured," Earle said, "that there was politically no anti-Semitism anywhere in Austria except Vienna."

A Foreign Office spokesman, commenting on the advice of the Minister, expressed pleasure and said the Government of Chancellor Dollfuss was in the midst of efforts to suppress those who advocate ruthless treatment of Jews.

After an interview with American correspondents, Earle repeated his remarks to the Vienna press, adding:

"It is up to Austrians themselves to decide on their politics."

"It is the prerogative of Americans, however, to give their sympathy to those who deserve it."

AAA IS AGAIN UPHELD IN MILK MARKETING SUIT

District of Columbia Judge Dismisses Injunction Petition of Philadelphia Group.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The Agricultural Adjustment Act was held constitutional for the second time today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue dismissed a petition for an injunction restraining the Secretary of Agriculture from enforcing certain regulations in connection with the Philadelphia milk shed agreement on prices and trade practices.

The Capital City Milk Producers' Association of Pennsylvania had contended the agreement was illegal. They will appeal today's decision, which was similar to that given in a Chicago milk case some weeks back.

O'Donoghue's opinion follows:

"The Court finds that the Agricultural Adjustment Act, passed by Congress May 12, 1933, is constitutional and that the regulations and licenses promulgated and issued thereunder are reasonable and valid."

"The act is based upon a 'fundamental law of nature . . . namely:
'Every man is his brother's keeper; every man is responsible more or less for the welfare of his fellow men; every man must so use that which is his as not to injure another."

"Both the spirit of the Constitutions and the Constitution itself are based upon this elemental law of nature. Justice to all with the greatest good for the greatest number must be the cardinal rule of all government."

"The production and distribution of milk, a necessity of life, for large congested urban centers, left to selfish, ruthless, uncontrolled competition, have not only failed but are threatened with ruin and chaos to producer, distributor and consumer.
In the existing emergency state governments are powerless to meet the situation. The Federal Government has assumed the duty and acted."

"In the opinion of this court it has not acted unconstitutionally."

"Accordingly, the court will discharge the rule to show cause and will refuse to grant the temporary injunction and will grant the motion to dismiss the bill of complaint."

$1,500,000 Allotted by PWA For Experimental Seadrome, Ocean Landing Place for Airplanes

Secretary Roper Says if Test Is Successful, Line of Such Stations to Europe
Will Be Built.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Secretary of Commerce Roper said today the Public Works Administration had allotted $1,500,000 to build a seadrome one quarter of the regular size, 500 miles off the Atlantic coast, for experimental purposes.

If the experiment succeeds, Roper said full sized seadromes, 1250 feet long, would be placed at 500-mile intervals across the ocean to Europe.

Roper estimated that about four months would be required to build the demonstration section. The entire airway would cost $30,000,000 and about 80 per cent of the total would go for labor, employing 10-000 men for two years.

The development is also dependent on the approval of the State Department, he said, adding this was expected momentarily.

"Studies conducted by the department's aeronautical experts show that an airway of these floating islands will assure efficient, safe, dependable and profitable 24-hour mail, passenger and express airplane service between the principal cities of the Atlantic seaboard and Western European capitals," Secretary Roper said. "The landing facilities of the Atlantic airway would be made available to any commercial aviation company or individual of any country on equal toll schedules, and these toll charges, it is estimated, will more than pay the operating expenses of the floating islands."

"The first island, 500 miles off the Atlantic Coast, could be located in such a position as to establish air service to start from several cities on the Atlantic coast, such as Boston, Providence, New Haven, New York, Newark, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Richmond, Norfolk, Wilmington, N. C., Charleston, S. C., and Savannah."

"Likewise at the other end of the route courses would branch off in fan shaped fashion for London, Paris, Lisbon, Madrid, Rome and points in Northern Africa."

Alarm Shown in England
Since President Roosevelt Started to Strengthen Forces Under Treaty.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 15.—Close on the announcement of British plans to build bigger warships, made in the House of Commons yesterday, Winston Churchill, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, charged the United States with having a two-faced disarmament policy.

In a speech at the Devonshire Club last night, Churchill also delivered a scathing attack on all nations which are increasing armaments while participating in negotiations for disarmament.

"The United States made the most beautiful speeches of all," he said,
"and also made the largest increases in their naval and air forces."

The announcement in the Commons by Sir Bolton Meredith Eyles Monnell, the First Lord of the Admiralty, made the point that Japan and the United States were building bigger cruisers. He said the admiralty had revised its 1933 program to include two new type 9,000-ton cruisers with increased armament and one cruiser of the 5,200-ton Arethusa class and that revision.

PRESIDENT REPORTS PROGRESS ON RUSSIA

Says Delay in Negotiations Doesn't Indicate Failure—Sees Litvinoff Again.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—President Roosevelt said today after a conversation with Maxim Litvinoff that negotiations on Russian relations were proceeding normally, but did not indicate a definite time for any announcement.

The President advised reporters at a press conference not to limit themselves to Friday or even Monday in forecasting an announcement, adding that if things were not signed, sealed and delivered by Friday it would by no means indicate that his negotiations with the Soviet Commissar had broken down.

The President said that his discussions with Litvinoff were making distinct progress.

The visit of the Russian Com-missar of Foreign Affairs was not scheduled long in advance, it having been explained previously that the President would receive him whenever various points were ready for discussion.

Litvinoff conferred with the President again early this afternoon.

It was their first personal conversation since the two-hour conference in President Roosevelt's study
Sunday night. In the meantime,

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its editorial principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Blue Eagle's Enemies.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

OUR laws have become so shot full of holes serving as convenient avenues of escape for financial and industrial rodents that it is little wonder we hear an ever-growing din of "constitutional" squeals every time the NRA stops up another rat hole. Financial and industrial cheaters, aided and encouraged by soul-for-sale lawyers, are ever ready to scuttle the ship of state for gain. The people love the Blue Eagle, not only for the obvious good it is doing, but also for the enemies it has made.

Mistaken statesmen tell us that the Constitution restrains the Government from "unreasonable interference with lawful business." But when the evident business of some captains of finance and industry is to exploit the many to enrich the few, it is not a lawful business and interference becomes not only reasonable but necessary to the very life of the nation.

Thus when comes the ruin that always follows the hook-up of crooked trades and the justice-stabbing lawyer, the statesman must step in and restore that ancient constitutional truth that human rights come before property interests.

DEMOCRACY.

Opposes Renaming Natural Bridge Road.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT is only a few years ago that some enterprising mind was all for changing the name of Natural Bridge road to "Lindbergh Flight." This suggestion was promptly squelched; and county lovers of their old historic road continued to breathe in peace.

Now the ghost of can't-tet-well-enough-alone has loomed anew; and some persons are urging a more practical designation, namely, "Airport drive."

Even with the perfectly obvious reasons given for the selection of this appellation, could anything be more incongruous than to wish such a name, entirely suggestive of the last word in modern travel, on this dreary old country highway, overlooking its peaceful course over the same route as in the days when St. Louis was only a little French village?

J. M. B.

Employment Under NRA.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHEN NIRA first went into effect, I sent you a letter pointing out that, if the workers were to receive any benefit from this new law, employers should be required to report the discharge of all employees receiving more than $15 per week, also giving the salaries of the new workers who were to take the place of those discharged.

One of our large railroads makes a great noise about increasing its payroll by $322,000 a month and adding 5,000 new workers. Please note that these figures work out almost exactly to a basis of $15 per week. The same railroad was strangely silent about laying off 45 men, whose salaries were considerably in excess of $15 per week, on Nov. 2.

Power machines are being moved from factories into homes, and the work is contracted on a piece rate basis. Of course, the operators of such machines are no longer employees, but contractors, and it is their own lack of business acumen if they earn no more than $3 or $4 a week (with the help of Mary Jane, age 8, and Johnny, age 10).

I am further glad to note that President Roosevelt has abolished child labor. This will be welcome news to the children in the beat fields and on the farms. They haven't heard it yet.

MARTIN B. LECHNER.

Cheers for the Carolinas.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WE who hate the liquor traffic and its accursed influence are truly glad that two states that did not fall for Satan's golden apples. Two states that will not ratify this brazen, unholy, un-American scheme to rewrite the Constitution at the behest of the world liquor forces. A scheme that was conceived in iniquity.

Three cheers for the Carolinas! May their tribe increase!

Herrin, Ill. A MILITANT DRY.

Regarding the Grand National Bank.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WOULD it not be a good plan for those having deposits in the Grand National Bank previous to the conservatorship to form a committee to demand action regarding disposition of these deposits? This money has been unavailable now for over eight months, during which no explanation has been given the depositors who were patriotic enough to leave their money in circulation at a time when a large percentage of the public was withdrawing for hoarding.

It would seem only fair that depositors who have been patient enough to wait this long should be given an authentic explanation and a definite date for disposition of this matter. The Comptroller of the Currency is apparently averse to doing anything regarding this bank, seemingly content to let the depositors suffer innumerable inconveniences; however, I am of the opinion that were his money tied up in this bank, a disposition would be made immediately.

Will some Government or State official be kind enough to explain, or should these deposits be written off the books and charged up to experience obtained through depositing money in a national bank?

J. F. WAYLAND.

MISSOURI'S LIQUOR LAW.

The special session of the Missouri Legislature would, in our judgment, be as wise to follow the liquor plan recommended by the Governor's commission as it would be unwise to accept any of the proposed substitutes for it.

Let us examine the merits of the case. The Governor's commission suggested a compromise between the tastes of city and country which would obviate the saloon. That is, it proposed that hotels, restaurants and clubs be permitted to serve drinks, but that otherwise all hard liquor should be sold in the original package by dealers. It proposed that persons in dry communities be permitted to receive liquor in packages.

The Legislature balks at these suggestions, with the result that a liquor plan that might already be agreed upon is still in the ferment of debate. Legislators from the country districts charge that the plan of the commission would be to revive the saloon in hotels, restaurants and clubs. They are afraid that all of these would become largely make-believe. They propose to limit the sale of liquor everywhere in the State to the original package.

Under such a plan, it would be impossible to get a drink at a hotel, a restaurant or a club without buying a bottle of liquor. This would be to revert to the day when each patron of a barber shop had his own shaving cup. What a grotesquerie that would be!

Let us reason together upon this vital subject. If what happened under national prohibition has not taught us a lesson, then we are incapable of learning a lesson. Such a State liquor law as is proposed by country members of the Legislature would recreate exactly such conditions as have existed under national prohibition. Is this what we want to do? Or do we want to adapt a very difficult matter to the dissimilar customs of communities?

Missouri contains two large cities: St. Louis, with almost a million people; Kansas City, with 400,000. There are additionally some urban communities as St. Joseph, 80,000; Springfield, 57,000; Joplin, 33,000; University City, 25,000; Hannibal, 22,000; Jefferson City, 21,000; Sedalia, 20,000; Columbia, 15,000.

The rural communities of the State are almost solidly against the saloon or anything resembling the saloon. These communities have a preponderance of the membership in the House. The disposition of this rural majority is not to accept the recommendation made by the Governor's commission because the rural legislators can see in it something that is to them distasteful.

They are therefore about to make a mistake, and it is one against which we utter a solemn warning. There is a way of life in the cities that is unlike the way of life in rural communities. This is not said in disparagement of the way of life in rural communities. It is a fact which must be faced. City people who go to a restaurant after the theater are the same in St. Louis, in Kansas City, in Joplin and Springfield, as city people are the world around. It is their custom, if they so desire, to have something to drink. They are not drunkards. They are decent and respectable people, usually the bone and sinew of the communities in which they live.

This is also true of life in the city hotels, as it is true of life in the clubs. The people who thrust national prohibition upon the country injected hypocrisy into the social life of all urban communities, into hotels, into restaurants, into clubs. It came to disrespect for law in the United States, a social demoralization that bore at length the bitter fruit of gangsterism and corruption of our jurisprudence.

The Judge and the citizen who drank in the protection of their club became at length the exemplars of the bootlegger and the gunman. It was this that not merely destroyed temperance, the goal of prohibition, but demoralized society, the improvement of which is the objective of all reform.

Let the Missouri Legislature be warned by that tragedy. The cities of Missouri have no wish to thrust upon rural communities a way of life distasteful to them. They respect absolutely the difference between the two ways of life. They are perfectly willing that rural communities should live as they wish.

Why, then, should not the rural communities of Missouri respect the wishes of the cities? If they do not respect them, the cities will go right on living as they have lived under national prohibition. We will have missed a great opportunity to recognize social dissimilarities to which we must adapt ourselves if the law is to be respected. To distinguish real hotels, restaurants and clubs from pretense is an administrative function.

We are far from wishing to threaten the Legislature. Nothing is more remote from our purpose than to preach lawlessness. As a matter of fact, we are advising the Legislature in the way of wisdom. We are pleading for law and order. The people on the Governor's commission balanced all these things perfectly in their recommendation. To unbalance them, as the special session is about to do, is to spurn good advice.

Have we not had enough of that gall which is the fruit of folly?

RENO'S REBELLION.

The farmers' strike in the corn belt seems to be a one-man affair. It might not be amiss to call it Reno's rebellion. It was evident, in his Des Moines talk, that Secretary Wallace did not regard it seriously, though he deplored the violence as a piece of destructive folly which would alienate a public opinion which had finally been mobilized in the farmers' behalf. And Gen. Johnson, in his hurried observation, was convinced the West was almost unanimously back of the recovery program.

A survey conducted by the Des Moines Tribune confirms Gen. Johnson's impression. Reporters detailed to canvass a number of counties found the prevailing sentiment to be that "Roosevelt is really doing something; he is on the right track, and he's working for us."

Unrest in the corn belt, according to a Des Moines dispatch in the New York Herald Tribune, is confined to the area around two market centers, Sioux City and Omaha. And, notwithstanding the highway picketing and vandalism, receipts of farm produce have not been seriously affected.

The Iowa farmer, as a class, is not on strike, it is explicitly stated, and not in sympathy with the so-called holiday. Substantial reasons are given. A year ago, his corn was worth 10 cents a bushel, and today the farmer can borrow 50 cents a bushel on his crop and keep it on the farm. Again, the Federal Government will distribute $493,000,000 in corn-bog reduction bonuses and rentals, of which $70,000,000 will go to Iowa farmers. Against those facts, the eloquence of a spellbinder like Milo Reno thunders in vain. Further, the Iowa farmer is pretty well fed up on the propaganda of agitators "whose living is derived from 'organizing' impoverished farmers." The Reno rebellion, if this survey is accurate, is a localized explosion that has already shot its bolt.

THE LOBBY INQUIRY.

At last, Missouri is to discover what has been going on behind the scenes at Jefferson City.

As a result of a resolution passed by the lower house of the Missouri Assembly, an investigation of lobbies and lobbyists will be conducted by a committee of three: Herman O. Maxey of Butler, who offered the resolution and who distinguished himself at the regular session by fighting the Buford mystery bill; Henry P. Lay of Warsaw and Lawrence Presley of Dallas County. Representatives Lay and Presley, like Representative Maxey, are critics of lobbying, particularly utility lobbying.

The investigation will undoubtedly provide many important disclosures. Mr. Maxey recognizes the right of the utility industry or any other industry to appear before committees with arguments against legislation, but he insists that lobbyists have not stopped at legitimate exercise of their rights. He proposes to find out just what they are doing to impede the Governor's emergency program, and to expose their practices to the public view.

It is about time the Legislature took the aggressive against the wrecking crews which the utilities and other industries have sent to Jefferson City. While the State faces a crisis that forced the Governor to take the extraordinary measure of calling a special session, these obstructionists are evidently pulling every possible wire to make that session a ghastly farce.

One of the measures the utility lobby is fighting is a change in the law by which a simple majority of votes would determine the outcome of public ownership elections, as against the present requirement of two-thirds. Two elections in St. Charles this year on a bond issue for a municipal power plant resulted in large majorities for the bond issue, but the vote in each instance fell just a little short of the necessary two-thirds. Yet, in franchise elections, a simple majority is sufficient to carry the day. Gov. Park proposes to remedy this obvious inequality. The utilities want to preserve it. They want majority rule in franchise elections, but would deny the people the right to hold municipal ownership elections on the same basis.

It is of no concern to the lobbies that the unemployed in Missouri are on the verge of starvation; that the State has been unable to pay salaries out of its treasury; that the penal and eleemosynary institutions are in a scandalous state of disrepair; that thousands upon thousands are crying for work. The lobbies are concerned only with preserving their own power over the State Government, a power they have exercised ruthlessly and corruptly.

The Governor himself has raised the question as to who is running the State, the people or the special interests? It is for the Maxey committee to find out.

AN IMPROVED ENOCH ARDEN.

"Bigger and better" is still the American slogan. Tennyson would realize that fact if he could return and read the news item about how his tale of Enoch Arden has just been outdone in Seattle. The poet's character returned home after some 13 years of absence, but the Seattle man, Fred H. Jacobs, had been away 17 years, since his departure to get into the European war. Mrs. Arden, giving up her husband for dead, married again; the soldier's supposed widow got a divorce, just to be sure, and then remarried three times. Enoch Arden found his two children at home; Fred Jacobs found his three sons were married and had children of their own. The modest British hero did not disclose his identity, but the more enterprising American paid a visit to his family. This amazing yarn, which is remarkably like an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" with four little Evas and 14 Toppies, may leave the merit of Tennyson's poem unchanged, but it deflates his story considerably. America's slogan is still "Bigger and better."

THE HOUSE IN BAKER STREET.

One of our readers, after noting reference in these columns to Vincent Starrett's book, "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes," writes that it contains the most glaring contradiction he has seen in a single volume. His complaint is that the book includes a description of the house of Sherlock Holmes, a photograph of it, and then lets the reader down with a thud in the last paragraph by admitting that the house never existed. We are spurred to answer, not by the correspondent's unhappy state of mind, but because it is an opportunity to give credit to an addition to detective lore which locally has never received due notice. The man who studied Doyle's writings and mapped Baker street in the hope of locating No. 221-B and then photographed the house which seemed the most accurate choice, is a St. Louis roentgenologist, Dr. Gray Chandler Briggs. All this is brought out by Mr. Starrett, who lays no claim to the result of Dr. Briggs' painstaking labor, but respects it as admirable Sherlockian research.

Our correspondent, we fear, is not the man to be passing on the merits of the tall, shrewd sleuth's deduction from the condition of the bell-rope at the Abbey Grange. Experimentation will show, perhaps, his meat to be the Statistical Abstract or the Census Reports. As for the house with the drawn blinds in crying old Baker street, with the rain beating on the windows and the wind sobbing like a child in the chimney and the inscrutable detective lounging on the sofa before the glow of sea coals in the grate, it stands, whether or not it was ever built. And we venture it will go on standing so long as the cold London fog rolls in with the winter and mischief is planned and thwarted and books are written and read.

"TERROR MOVIES."

The Milwaukee Woman's Club is up in arms against "terror movies." It may be accepted without argument that the effect of such films on children is sometimes undesirable. The Milwaukee women, however, have only two proposed remedies for the situation. The first is to induce producers to stop making horror films; the alternative is to bring about a law forbidding children under 14 to attend the movies. Domestic discipline in Milwaukee must be in a sorry state if the parents are unable to handle the matter themselves, without the need for lobbying at Hollywood or Madison. By noting the advertisements and the reviews, parents can inform themselves as to what kind of picture is on the program, and can speedily decide whether or not Junior should see it. Parental censorship, which interferes with nobody outside the family, is the best way of guiding the child to proper entertainment.

ANOTHER ARGUMENT FOR PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By Walter Lippmann

Newspapers and NRA

THE place of newspapers under NRA is as yet unsettled. While most newspapers are operating under the so-called blanket code and are entitled to display the Blue Eagle, the specific newspaper code has not yet been approved. The point of contention has been a demand put forward by the publishers that their code should contain the following paragraph:

"In submitting this code, or in subscribing or assenting thereto, the daily newspaper publishers do not thereby agree to accept or to comply with any requirements other than those herein contained, or waive any right to object to the imposition of such requirements, or to the restriction or interference with the constitutional guarantee of the freedom of the press."

The authorities in Washington have not accepted this paragraph, and a deadlock has resulted. The general impression is that the newspapers have asked the administration to recognize their special guarantee under the first amendment, which forbids Congress to make a law "abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press," that the administration has replied that no such recognition is necessary, since it could not if it would and would not if it could abridge the freedom of the press; and that the newspapers have been retorting: "Why, then, do you object to saying so?"

But a close reading of the proposed paragraph will show that it means more than that the free expression of opinion shall not be interfered with. The vital clauses, it seems to me, are those in which the newspapers do not thereby agree to accept or comply with any requirements other than those contained in their proposed code, "or waive any right to object to the imposition of any further requirements." These clauses reject the idea of an evolution and elaboration of the code, either by act of the President or on the initiative of any association late for the newspaper industry. In effect, the newspapers say: "We are prepared to accept the rules in this code, but we do not agree that you can proceed to use codes to legislate for the newspaper business."

In order to appreciate the issue which has been raised, it is necessary to realize that an NRA code is Federal legislation for a particular industry; it is framed by trade associations, labor associations and the executive branch of the Government. It is a statute that has been written by the Congress of the United States. Mr. Ford, for example, though he has never signed a code, is subject to the law of the automobile code precisely as if that code had been passed by Congress. A code is, thus, a very striking example of the delegation of legislative power.

If I read correctly the paragraph on which the newspapers are insisting, it means that they refuse to agree that the power to legislate for the newspaper business shall be delegated. They are willing to subject themselves to a particular set of rules, but not to the principle that the NRA shall go on legislating about newspaper publishing.

This means that, while the newspapers are willing to accept certain requirements about labor conditions, they really do not wish to be brought under the NRA system. In other words, they do not wish to have a code in the true meaning of the term. It would be better if they said so frankly. The issues would be clearer if they did. It would be much better, in the long run, to take the forthright position that newspapers do not belong under the code system contemplated by the Recovery Act.

For the code system, as authorized in that act, contemplated the setting up of control over whole industries. The immediate purpose of that control is to prevent destructive price and wage-cutting; the ultimate purpose is to promote balanced, co-ordinated and planned management of whole industries. Now, while newspapers are for the most part profit-making enterprises, their main function, which is to provide news and opinion, cannot be brought under the conception of industrial planning. At least not in a free country.

Thus, for example, it may be wise to say, as the administration has recently said, that the cotton textile industry should not enlarge its plant. That may be good planning. But no one can or ought to say that a new newspaper should not be started, or that two old newspapers should be combined, as we are saying that two railroads should be combined. Competition may be wasteful in industry. In newspapers, it is the indispensable condition of freedom. The industrial philosophy of NRA is, therefore, wholly inapplicable to the newspapers. For they ought not to be combined. They ought not to be co-ordinated. They ought not to be set up as public utilities and brought within the orbit of government.

It may be asked: What, concretely, is the objection to bringing the newspaper under codes? I know that it has been suggested that what the powerful conservative publishers really object to are the better wages and hours and the collective bargaining, not the threat to the freedom of the press. For myself, I do not care what their motives are. It is not the powerful and rich newspapers that are threatened. It is the weaker newspapers. If the principle of raising costs uniformly is carried very far, it is the weaker newspapers, more often than not the liberal and progressive newspapers, which will be driven to the wall. It is the big newspapers which will survive.

In other words, it will accelerate the process of merger and combination which has already, I believe, gone much too far for the public good. That is the real danger. I am not afraid that the President or Gen. Johnson will suppress a newspaper they do not like. I am much more afraid that they will inadvertently kill a whole lot of newspapers they do very much like. For it is a fact, and it might as well be recognized, that liberal, progressive or radical newspapers are, on the whole, the least profitable. They do not attract the advertiser. It is upon the least profitable newspapers that the burden of rising costs falls most heavily. What is a free press? Is it one which is allowed by law to say what it thinks? Yes. But it is also a press which is able to say what it thinks. In order to have a free press, there must be many newspapers of all shades of opinion, not merely a few industrially sound institutions. In banking, railroads, manufacturing, the ideal may be a few sound institu-

Less Forest Fire Loss

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

IT NOW seems inevitable that 1933 will go down as the most fortunate year in history for the national forests. In addition to the constructive work done by the Civilian Conservation Corps, fire records for the first nine months indicate the lowest percentage loss ever reported. The number of fires was 8 per cent. less than for the same period in 1932, and the area burned over is less than one-fourth the five-year average. In acreage, this year's fire loss is the lowest since 1906, at which time the total area of national forests was only a fraction of what it is today.

This achievement is strikingly set forth in dollars and cents. In the first nine months of 1933, it cost $706,112 to fight fires in the national forests. This year, it cost only $257,199. Last year, the loss in timber and buildings, due to fire, was $294,124; this year, it was $120,437. In 1932, it cost $3,221,217 to control the fires. And in 1910, one of the really bad fire years, the combined cost of fighting fire and loss of property totaled $27,000,000.

The credit for this notable showing is shared among the forest service personnel, the CCC and the weather. There were no prolonged droughts in important forest regions. Regular fire control has been improving year by year. And the Conservation Corps did good work in a number of instances in which fires did get under way, notably in the Northwest. The combined result was a distinct gain for conservation.

For the press, the ideal is many institutions, many of them necessarily not financially sound. The NRA system applied to newspapers, if carried out logically, would give us a few sound newspaper institutions. That is not desirable in the public interest. So I believe that the newspapers ought to reconsider their position and frankly adopt the view that, since the NRA code system is not suited to them, they are withdrawing their application for a code. Then, to show their good will, those newspapers which can afford it ought voluntarily to make a gentlemen's agreement among themselves, and perhaps with the President, putting into effect the labor provisions in the proposed code. Then they ought to remove the Blue Eagle from their own pages, on the principle that it makes them tacit participants in an implied boycott against publishers who are not able to meet the terms, and that such a boycott is morally odious and legally without warrant.

Not the least of the advantages of such a solution is that it will strengthen the permanently valuable elements of the NRA. I am myself a believer in the immense possibilities of the code system as applied to basic industries and to highly competitive manufacture. But there is no surer way of discrediting NRA than to apply it indiscriminately and at wholesale. It should never have been applied to little shops, to small stores, to the large mass of modest enterprises. It has not been applied to the Government itself. It should not be applied to churches, schools, colleges or non-profit-making institutions. It should not be applied to any activity which does not naturally and readily fit into the concept of industrial planning.

Even with all these exceptions, the field in which NRA does apply is immense. It is so immense that the task of working out and enforcing codes in that field will take all the brains and all the energy that Washington can enlist. Why, then, not concentrate on doing what NRA was meant to do, and give up trying to extend it into fields where it does not apply and will not work? (Copyright, 1933.)

The DAILY MERRY

By BREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.

BLOOD is thicker than water between the Roosevelts, but thick enough to upset the Department's new "Six Sumpster's" policy in the Caribbean. Tyrant Trujillo, dictator of the Dominican Republic, has just demonstrated this fact.

Some time ago, Cousin Harry Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, took a cruise through the Caribbean, stopped off to visit Trujillo, was royally entertained. About to depart, Cousin Harry asked Tyrant Trujillo, if there was anything he could do to compensate for lavish Dominican hospitality.

Tyrant Trujillo replied that he was. He said he would like to have two Marine officers come down and give a little advice to his army. He did not add that his own regime was tottering, that would like to have concrete military evidence of American support.

Cousin Harry promised to produce. Back in Washington, he notified the State Department that Maj. Thomas Watson and Lieut. Gregory Williams, U. S. M. C., would be attached to President Trujillo. But the State Department said "No."

So Cousin Harry went over to the White House to see Cousin Franklin. He told him that President Trujillo had been kind, that the President of the United States had a treaty right to send Marines to Santo Domingo, that two Marines should go. Cousin Franklin was dubious. He said that was for "Sec" Hull to decide.

Back Cousin Harry went to the State Department and Secretary Hull. He told a long story. Hull listened placidly, intimated an agreement. Cousin Harry was vigorous. He even got indignant that the State Department should prevent repayment of a just debt of hospitality. Finally Hull waned. He said:

"Well, if you insist upon it, it can go."

Cousin Harry went back to the Marines. He was elated. "Sec" Hull told his chief Latin-American assistant. He was not elated.

Then developed a contest as to who is really running the Latin American policy of the United States. Jefferson Caffery, the Assistant Secretary of State in question, stepped in. He showed sending two Marines to serve Tyrant Trujillo would put the American stamp of approval on a game as bad as Machado's, would give American blessing to depredations by Trujillo's army, would injure United States prestige in Latin America. Caffery had his way. Cousin Harry did not. The two Marine officers are not going to Santo Domingo.

BRITAIN TO BUILD UP NAVY TO MEET U. S. PROGRAM

tion had been made "following the most anxious consideration and with much regret."

The Admiralty's announcement was received enthusiastically by big navy advocates who recently have been warning that Great Britain was becoming the weak sister of the sea instead of its mistress as she has been described for centuries.

The Secretary of the Navy League commented on the announcement that it was "an indication to the public that the admiralty is watching every development in the naval situation and not sitting back in their chairs."

"One hopes," said the Navy League statement, "that this decision will not be used by the scare-mongers to indicate a likelihood of war."

Almost constantly, since President Roosevelt launched a United States naval program under the terms of the naval treaty, British leaders have shown alarm.

Stanley Baldwin mentioned the situation in his speech of Oct. 6 in Birmingham, and Admirals Beatty and Chatfield have raised their voices in support of a program for building up the British Navy, pointing with concern at the United States.

This campaign reached its highest pitch on the anniversary of the Battle of Trafalgar, Oct. 21, the British Navy day, when both Beatty and Chatfield spoke in favor of the traditional British command of the seas.

In his announcement to the House of Commons, Byres Monsell revived the long standing British argument over large and small cruisers. He pointed out that the United States and Japan, under the terms of the treaty, were quite entitled to build the ships which those countries had in contemplation and in actual construction.

However, he said, it would be the policy of the British Government by agreement, to restrict the vessels of the larger sizes as much as possible.

He recalled that the 1933 program included one cruiser of 7250 tons and three of 5400 tons, and that the Admiralty had decided in favor of three larger cruisers rather than the four smaller ones previously contemplated.

"The policy of building cruisers of comparatively small tonnage," the First Lord said, "has been adopted in the hope that other nations will follow our lead."

Also it will be recalled that in July, 1932, the United Kingdom delegation at Geneva put forward proposals for a reduction of further cruisers to 7000 tons, with a maximum gun caliber of 6.1 in the hope that this would be generally accepted.

"Unfortunately neither of these hopes has been realized."

In 1931 Japan laid down two cruisers of 8500 tons, reputed to mount 15.6-inch guns.

"It is learned she is now laying down two more of the same dimensions and that the construction of yet another two, making six in all, is projected."

"The United States also has already announced an intention of building four cruisers of 10,000 tons each, with 15.6-inch guns."

"If, therefore, our program . . . should be carried out, the new cruisers would be definitely inferior to those being developed by other powers."

"As the House is aware, however, our total cruiser tonnage is limited by the London Naval Treaty."

The result is that we have been on the horns of a dilemma. If we proceeded with our original program, all the cruisers we should be building would be definitely inferior to certain of the cruisers being built by other powers.

To build any cruisers comparable with those vessels we must reduce our number from four to three."

The first Lord proceeded with the announcement of a revised program providing, among other details, for two 9000-ton vessels.

SAVING BY BEEF CANNING

Cloverdale, N. M.—A 6-year-old Mexican steer, of little market value, was converted into 450 pounds of cooked beef with an estimated wholesale value of $67 through the efforts of housewives of this town.

Under instructions of the Hidalgo County Home Demonstration Agent, women cooked and canned the steer in one day, putting up enough food to last a family of four nearly a year. Total cost of the canning was $11.15.

Roman Cathedral Bird Sanctuary.

ROUEN, France.—About 1400 winged creatures make their home in the Cathedral here. Of this number 900 are pigeons, 300 bats, 90 hawks, 50 owls and 35 are ravens. A hawk will sometimes revert to its natural instincts and eat a pigeon. But the bats, owls and ravens never fight, according to the sexton.

Fifth Cutting of Texas Alfalfa.

PLAINVIEW, Tex.—Many growers of alfalfa this year will make a fifth cutting and work will start on that within a few weeks. Most of the late fourth cutting has been completed. It averaged around a ton to the acre. Little trouble has been reported in disposing of the crop at prices of $12 to $13 a ton in town, or slightly less at the field.

IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES

HIDE 'EM COWBOY! Every second is crowded with danger for Eddie Woods, twice all-round cowboy champion at the famous Calgary Stampede. It sure takes healthy nerves to stay on board a fighting bronk! "Camels are my smoke," says Eddie Woods. "They never jangle my nerves."

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

EDDIE WOODS, one of the "top hands" of the cowboy world, says:

"Ten seconds on the back of an outlaw horse is about the hardest punishment for a man's nerves that anybody can imagine. To have nerves that can take it, I smoke only Camels. I've tried them all, but Camels are my smoke! They have a natural mildness, and I like their taste better. Most important of all, Camels do not jangle my nerves, even when I light up one Camel after another."

If you are nervous... jumpy... inclined to "fly off the handle"... change to Camels. Your own nerves and taste will confirm the fact that this milder cigarette, made from costlier tobaccos, is better for steady smoking.

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

(LEFT) "OUT ON THE RANCH I became devoted to riding and smoking Camels. Even though I am in the tenderfoot class I need healthy nerves. And Camels do not upset my nerves. That is important to a woman!"

Free your mind of DREAD!

Why keep on worrying about pyorrhea, bleeding gums and other mouth threats? Put Squibb's Dental Cream on guard at The Danger Line... and laugh once more!

FEAR and worry won't stop the very real dangers of gum-infection and tooth-decay that threaten neglected mouths. But when your teeth and gums have the care of a good dentist and the all-round protection of Squibb's Dental Cream, you can rest assured that they're as safe as it's possible to make them.

Squibb's cleans the teeth thoroughly and polishes them safely, with absolute freedom from grit. It helps to prevent bleeding of the gums by safe cleansing—not by the use of astringents or other irritants. It combats the germ acids that cause tooth-decay. And its use is true economy.

There's a satisfaction in using Squibb's Dental Cream that goes beyond its clean, refreshing taste—even beyond the delight of seeing your teeth sparkling and your gums healthy. It's the satisfaction of knowing your dentifrice is safe and reliable because it bears a name that, for 75 years, has been a symbol of scientific dependability.

Don't be a victim of needless fear! See your dentist. Have him make a check-up of your mouth. Then guard The Danger Line by brushing your teeth at least twice a day with Squibb's Dental Cream.

*The Danger Line is the area where the thin edge of the gum encircles each tooth, forming tiny ledges, difficult to reach by brushing. Here food particles collect and bacteria multiply, generating acids. Not one, but all your teeth are endangered by unhealthy gums. When you use Squibb's Dental Cream, you force into the sheltered areas countless antacid particles which combat the germ acids and protect the gums.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

Needs No Cooking! Big Saving!

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough from colds. It's no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle, yet it can be depended upon to give quick and effective relief. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water for a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a pint bottle, and fill up with your sugar syrup. The pint thus made gives you four times as much cough remedy for your money, yet it is far more effective than ready-made medicine. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It soothes and helps heal the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Pinex is compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, famous as an agent for relieving throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

First Suspension in Illinois City During the Depression.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 15.—The Bank of Peoria, owned and operated by the Peoria Life Insurance Co., failed to open its doors today pending an examination and adjustment by Edward Barrett, State Auditor. No statements were made by bank officers.

OPEN VERDICT IN SHOOTING

OF BOY, 3, IN DANCE HALL

Verne Lacey Armstrong's Father and William King Under Bond Pending Grand Jury Inquiry.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide at the hands of parties unknown was returned today in the case of Verne Lacey Armstrong, 3 years old, who was shot and killed early yesterday as he slept in his father's lap in a dance hall at 3624 North Grand boulevard.

The child's father, Ralph Armstrong, 4283 McPherson avenue, and William King, proprietor of the dance hall and saloon connected with it, will remain under bond pending a grand jury investigation. Patrolman Oscar Fink, who was just leaving the resort when the child was shot, testified that when he rushed back he saw Armstrong and King with their hands raised in the air. King with a pistol in one hand. "It appeared they were scuffling for possession of the pistol," Fink testified.

Police and employees of the place gave the only testimony. Officers said Armstrong, wounded in the thigh by the bullet that killed his son, admitted ownership of the pistol, which he said was discharged as he was taking it out of his clothing to make the child more comfortable. Mrs. Armstrong, according to police, blamed King but said she did not see the child shot.

Employees were unable to give a clear account of what happened.

ROOSEVELT AND SMITH

HAVE A 'PLEASANT VISIT'

New York Wonders If New City Alliance Was Formed; Al's Friend Gets Appointment.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—President Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith had a "nice pleasant visit" last evening at the White House and there was speculation today about an alliance for a new deal in New York Democracy.

It was just tea and cake at the Executive Mansion as the President received Smith and John J. Raskob. But before the guests arrived the President appointed James J. Hoey as Collector of Internal Revenue in New York. Hoey was floor manager for Smith in the 1928 Democratic Convention. He left Tammany Hall to run with Joseph V. McKee in opposition to Tammany in the recent New York municipal contest. Smith supported Hoey and did not give public backing to Tammany. Neither did the aide of President Roosevelt.

"We had a nice pleasant visit," said Smith as he walked from the White House.

Smith was installed last night as a member of the Board of Trustees of Catholic University. He was given the oath by William Cardinal O'Connor, Archbishop of Boston.

Smith, in an address delivered at a reception for Bishop James J. Ryan, rector of the university, said the Catholic University of America "has been a great asset to our nation."

"I believe," he said, "that a person cannot be a good Catholic and a bad citizen."

Patrick Cardinal Hayes and Postmaster-General Farley also spoke.

Funeral services for Martin L. Hayes Sr., 4933 Mardel avenue, superintendent of transportation for the Missouri Pacific Railroad, will be held at 9 a. m. Friday at St. Mary Magdalene Church. Burial will be in St. Peter and Paul's Cemetery.

Mr. Hayes, who was 52 years old, died yesterday at Missouri Pacific Hospital of cancer. He began his railroad career in 1897 and held various positions in the maintenance and transportation departments, being appointed superintendent of transportation in February, 1932. His widow, two daughters and a son survive.

PAIR TO LOSE HOME BECAUSE OF MIXUP ON FEDERAL LOAN

R. F. C. Refusal to Accept Home Loan Bonds Causes Sudden Difficulty.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 15.—An elderly pair faced the loss of their home today because of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's refusal to accept Federal Home Loan bonds.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Reid were to have been the first home owners to receive help from the recently opened local branch of the Home Loan Corporation.

Arrangements were being made when the Guarantee Trust Co., a restricted bank which holds the mortgage on the Reid home, informed home loan officials that it could not accept home loan bonds. A bank officer explained that the Reid mortgage had already been pledged with the R. F. C. for a loan, and the R. F. C. would not accept home loan bonds for its redemption. The officer said the bank could not consider accepting the bonds itself and using depositors' funds to redeem the mortgage.

oversupply of white corpuscles in the blood, complicated by the sudden development of pneumonia. He was stricken a few days ago after returning from Miami, Fla., and Washington. He was 69 years old.
He was moved yesterday afternoon from his home to a hospital in Florida, and after his return to Chicago had kept to his bed. His illness, however, was not at first considered serious.
His four children were present in the hospital when he died. They are Edward N. Hurley Jr., Raymond J. Hurley, Mrs. Helen Hurley Ryan and John N. Hurley. His second wife, the former Florence Agnes Amberg, was killed in an automobile accident several months ago. His first wife died more than 30 years ago.

Began as Railroad Fireman; Headed Ship Board During War.
Edward N. Hurley became nationally prominent first as a member of the Federal Trade Commission in 1913, later becoming its chairman. Because of private business, he resigned from Government service in February, 1917, only to be called back a few months later by President Wilson to head the Shipping Board.

The United States then was at war. There was the greatest need to send men and supplies to the aid of the allied forces. President Wilson summoned his new shipping chief and said: "Hurley, we must go the limit." And go the limit he did.

How he succeeded was summarized in a letter he received from President Wilson after he completed his work.
"Mr. Hurley, the President wrote, "served the country with distinction in these difficult times. No one ever served his country's interests more devotedly than you did, and personally I am deeply grateful to you."

He also received the Distinguished Service Medal, the honor being conferred on him for "exceptional meritorious service in connection with the shipment of troops and supplies." Allied nations gave him high honors.
When the insull crash came he was appointed co-receiver for the great Middle West Utilities Co. to aid in salvage of assets for the thousands of investors.

Chairman of the Hurley Machine Co., he long was active in manufacturing, transportation and utility ventures. He was a director of several automobile concerns, utilities, railroads, traction companies, steamship lines and banks.

Born in Galesburg, Ill., Mr. Hurley started work after a common school education as a fireman on the Burlington Railroad. During the railway strike of 1888 he went East to work for a Philadelphia firm selling railroad supplies. It was there that he became interested in inventions and that interest later started him as a manufacturer.
A chance walk down a Chicago street where he met Mart Kimman, a friend of the early days of railroading, was the turning point of his life. Kimman confided that he and his brother had invented a pistol air drill and asked Mr. Hurley to help market it.
For that purpose he organized his first company, the Standard Pneumatic Tool Co., and six years later, in 1902, sold his interest for more than $1,000,000.

He was chairman of the civic committee instrumental in bringing to Chicago the national conventions of the Republican and Democratic parties in 1932.

CARDINALS GET CATCHER WHO BATTED .345 LAST SEASON

Wilson to Stay With the Phillies, Nugent Declares

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15.—The deal which brings Catcher Jimmy Wilson back to the Philadelphia National League club also takes Catcher Virgil Davis and Infielder Eddie Delker to the Cardinals, who property they once were.

Recently in advance reports of the Wilson-Davis deal, it was said the trade would be a three-way transaction, and that Wilson eventually would go to Cincinnati to be manager, that Don Hurst also would become a Red, the Phillies to get Jimmie Brown and Catcher Ernie Lombardi.

By W. J. McGooigan
Jimmy Wilson, star catcher, has been traded to the Philadelphia National League club for catcher Virgil Davis and Eddie Delker, infielder, Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals announced today.

Red to Box on Coliseum Card

Eddie Byrne, matchmaker for the Jackson Johnson Jr. Post of the American Legion, announced today that he had signed Joe Red, welterweight, to appear in the semi-windup to the Payne-Whitlow fight which will feature the post's program at the Coliseum next Monday night.

Red has compiled a notable record in and around St. Louis in the last few months, over which span he has engaged in more than 20 bouts, and has not once been defeated. Among his most recent triumphs are Joe Huff, whom Red outpointed in six rounds at The Arena; Ellis Bradley of Quincy, who was defeated in eight rounds; Jack Ritchie of Kansas, whom Red knocked out in three rounds; Moses Frigate of Pekin, Ill., and Freddie W. Wayne, Ind.

Big League Average Is .323
Davis' hitting developed rapidly at Philadelphia where he had a chance to catch regularly. He batted .290 in 69 games in 1928; .318 in 98 games in 1929; .312 in 106 games in 1930; .328 in 120 games in 1931 and .336 in 125 games in 1932 so that his all time major league batting average is .3236.

Wilson Near End of String
Wilson, 33 years of age, was one of the mainstays of the Cardinals since he joined the team and was credited with a large part in the three pennants which the Cardinals won while he was with the team in 1928, 1930 and 1931. Jimmy was not such a great hitter, batting only .233 in 1933.

New Disease, Hyperinsulinism, Reverse of Diabetes, Described By Dean Marriott of Washington U.

Mistaken for Epilepsy or Drunkenness and Successful Treatment by Operation Reported in Seven Cases.

A new disease—hyperinsulinism, the reverse of diabetes—is under study of various branches of medical science in Washington University School of Medicine.

Its symptoms, described by Dean McKim Marriott of Washington University Medical School, to the Southern Medical Association today at Richmond, Va., are diverse and bizarre, more readily associated with a mental disturbance than with an upset of the digestive mechanism. It has often been mistaken for epilepsy. Sometimes it simulates drunkenness—drunkenness from which some patients have found they could "sober up" simply eating a piece of candy.

A student blundered into disciplinary difficulties in military school, slept for 36 hours, drove for 45 minutes through crowded streets and into an accident without knowing what he was doing. His physician thought he had epilepsy.

A Northern farmer found he had to eat "all the time" or have convulsions. One clinic diagnosed brain tumor; another removed his gall bladder and appendix.

An intelligent young pharmacist lost his mental edge, had fainting attacks, was considered epileptic and later, on a psychiatrist's diagnosis of sex repression, was treated unsuccessfully by psychoanalysis and hypnotism.

Seven Operations Successful.

And each of the three was cured at Barnes Hospital by removal from the pancreas of a tumor composed of rapidly growing "islets of Langerhans," the same "islets" from which Dr. Frederick Banting 10 years ago discovered means of extracting the insulin which is keeping thousands of diabetics alive today.

Including these three, removal of such tumors has been reported in seven cases in all medical history, with no fatalities. Unremoved—unidentified, in fact, until autopsy—they are known to have caused death. The condition of the three patients before the removal of the tumors in St. Louis indicated that death was not far off.

These cases have been discussed in scientific publications, and were the subject of the last Arthur Dean Banting lecture, before the Chicago Surgical Society and the Chicago Institute of Medicine, by Dr. Everts A. Graham, Washington University professor of surgery.

In addition, Dr. Marriott in his address today discussing this and other recent advances in biological chemistry, told of six patients in St. Louis Children's Hospital successfully treated by diets high in sugars, and one cured by removal of seven-eighths of the pancreas, the gland through which the insulin-producing "islets" are scattered.

That operation was performed when the dietary treatment was unsuccessful on a year-old infant with symptoms including convulsions and mental retardation. A tumor was suspected, but none was found. Similar removal of part of the pancreas to cut down insulin production has not always been successful, possibly, in some cases, because an "islet" tumor remained in the part which was not removed.

Burning Down Body Sugar.

The "islets" producing insulin, which enables the body to burn sugar, are scattered through the pancreas, which produces an entirely different digestive juice. The body of the gland discharges its pancreatic juice into the digestive tract through a duct, while the islets, like the "ductless glands," give their insulin directly into the circulation through the blood vessels about them.

Over-production of insulin burns the blood sugar down to a dangerous point, producing the symptoms described by Dr. Marriott, Dr. Graham, Dr. David P. Barr, professor of medicine, and their associates. Under-production, with consequent inability to consume sugars, causes diabetes.

The level of insulin production was concerned in a third condition, said Dr. Marriott. He related that for 10 years the administration of small doses of insulin before meals had been a stand-by for increasing appetite and correcting under-nourishment after other means had been exhausted.

"It has been a matter of common observation that diabetic patients, especially children, treated with insulin, often become excessively fat," he remarked. "It has, indeed, been said by some that one of the chief causes of obesity is hyperinsulinism."

Cured With "Shot of Sugar."

Dr. Banting's epochal discovery of a means of extracting insulin, which offered the first hope in diabetes, also gave medical science its first inkling of the symptoms which might occur in hyperinsulinism. In the course of working out the methods which won the Nobel prize for Dr. Banting and his associates, his classmate, Dr. Joseph Glichrst, who had diabetes and experimented on himself to test the strength of the early preparation, gave himself an overdose. As related in "Men Against Death," by Paul de Kruif:

"One day, after a shot into himself of a new batch, Joe began sweating though the room was cool. His knees wobbled. He couldn't remember what he was doing. His brain couldn't find the words he wanted. He said he felt like one of those poor rabbits with an overdose who go dashing around frightened, insanely bumping into benches and tables...."

"Joe saved his own life, thanks to Prof. Henderson's simple trick of taking a quick dose of glucose. Henderson had taught Banting that a little shot of sugar raises the too low blood pressure of rabbits, literally bringing them back from the grave."

First Real Clue in 1927.

That happened 10 years ago. In the next year a physician published his conclusions that the same symptoms might be caused by a "spontaneous" over-production of insulin in the body. A few times since then surgeons have tried to control it by removal of part of the pancreas, containing part of the pin-point islets. It was not until 1927 that it was found, in autopsy, that a single over-grown cluster of islet cells—actually a tumor, sometimes a cancer—could cause all the trouble, and not for two more years was the first cure effected by removal of a tumor.

In the following year, 1930, the student, who was the first treated here, was operated on. His mother had noticed that a sip of sweetened tea at the beginning of one of his attacks, which had been attributed to epilepsy, would rouse him so that he would finish the cup, and the attack would be less severe.

The farmer, who had been variously diagnosed elsewhere as suffering from diseases of the brain, the gall bladder and the appendix, was the second patient. His illness began, he related, one October morning at his chores when he felt drunk. Breakfast ended the feeling, but it returned. His wife found morning attacks were prevented by feeding him several times at night, and he took to carrying candy in his pockets to stave them off by day. His attacks, like the student's, were permanently ended by operation.

The third patient, a druggist of intelligence, treated for epilepsy and later, by hypnosis and psychoanalysis, for sex repression, had failed, mentally to the point where he could answer questions only with nonsense. After the active "islet" tumor was removed from the pancreas, he was able to defeat his father and brother at chess.

This, commented Dean Marriott, was only one of the strange diseases which became clear-cut in diagnosis and treatment when their underlying disturbances in the chemistry of the blood were understood. "In clinical medicine," he concluded, "it often pays to be chemically minded."

MRS. ROOSEVELT ENTERTAINS CHINESE ENVOY'S WIFE AT TEA

She and Mme. Sze Exchange House-wifely Experiences in Chat at White House.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mme. Sze, wife of the Chinese Minister, yesterday exchanged housewifely experiences in a chat over the tea table at the White House.

Mrs. Roosevelt humorously told Mme. Sze she was in "serious trouble" with her husband because she was without the tea of which he was fondest—and she didn't know how to meet the situation because the tea always came as a gift. An old Chinese merchant sent this tea to the President's grandfather, and then to his aunt, Mrs. Forbes, and she had been supplying the family for years.

Mme. Sze sent Mrs. Roosevelt samples of every kind of Chinese tea, and even found some of the variety the Roosevelts had been using. It is not sold in this country.

Citizens' Free Employment Bureau, 1806 Washington avenue received 1026 applications for jobs last week and found work for 199, most of them in temporary employment. Applications totaled 76 more than the previous week and placements were 21 fewer. The county branch of the bureau, now at 7803 Forsythe boulevard, Clayton, reported finding 141 jobs.

LOUISIANA INVESTIGATING SECRET NEGRO ORGANIZATION

Man Killed by Officers After He Resists Them; Whites Said to Be Promoting Society.

FARMERVILLE, La., Nov. 15.—With the slaying in what authorities say was to have been a Farmerville "Negro uprising," an investigation was being pushed today concerning the activities of a so-called white "organization."

The death occurred yesterday, when officers shot and killed a Negro, Mack Leslie, 30 years old, alleged to be the secretary and treasurer of the secret organization. They had sought to "save" him from a reported lynching party en route to seize him.

According to the officers, the Negro resisted their efforts to take him to Farmerville for safekeeping and appeared to reach for a hidden weapon. Two deputies fired and the Negro fell dead with five bullet wounds in his body, Sheriff Murphy said.

Fourteen Negroes are held in connection with the Negro organization's reputed plans.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Stocks generally were indifferent to another sharp decline in international dollar rates today and leading issues moved about in a narrow range during a relatively dull session. Speculative sentiment apparently was still confused regarding the administration's monetary program. The close was irregular. Transfers approximated 1,300,000 shares.

Notwithstanding the fact that the domestic gold price remained unchanged at $35.46 an ounce, sterling soared to around $54.22, up 14 cents, and French francs jumped 13 1/2 cents to another new high at 65 1/2 cents. Equities shifted their position mildly from time to time, but trends were usually indefinite. Wheat lost about 2 cents a bushel and other grains were soft. Cotton did little and silver futures reacted. With the exception of some foreign obligations, bonds were heavy. Federal loans again dropped.

Small gains were held by shares of the Standard Oil of New Jersey and California, American Telephone, Liggett & Myers B, Continental, American Can, National Distillers and U. S. Smelting. Homestake dropped 5 and losers of fractions at around a point or more included U. S. Steel, General Motors, du Pont, Western Union, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, N. Y. Central, Alaska Juneau, McIntyre Porcupine, Sears Roebuck and Allied Chemical. Declaration of the regular quarterly dividend by American Telephone helped to lift this issue materially. Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey declined to new lows for the year.

Wheat finished with losses of 1 1/2 to 2 cents a bushel. Corn was off 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 cents and oats declined 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 cents. Rye declined 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 cents and barley dropped 2 to 2 1/2 cents a bushel. Wheat at Winnipeg was off about 1/2 cent. Corn showed final gains of 15 to 15 1/2 cents a bushel, but oats declined 1/4 of a cent an ounce to 45 1/2 cents.

The British pound sterling, at $54.22, was up 1 1/2 cents; French francs gained 10 of a cent at 65 1/2 cents and Dutch guilders were up 1 1/2 cents at 67 1/2 cents. Belgian francs and Swiss francs moved up 1/4 cent each. German marks, the Scandinavian, Canadian dollars and Far Eastern exchanges firmed.

News of the Day.
Aside from numerous conjectures regarding the outcome of the foreign exchange situation, Wall street pondered over the address of Secretary Wallace in which the agricultural executive pointed out that America must take a position for reducing tariffs or curbing production, or decide on a compromise between the two.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Total sales on the New York Stock Exchange today amounted to 1,353,460 shares, compared with 1,151,531 a week ago and 946,535 a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 603,512,508 shares, compared with 393,888,919 last year and 514,296,945 two years ago.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—A combination of moderate selling pressure and paucity of bids near the market resulted in a further decline in bond prices today.

U. S. Government, high grade corporation issues and secondary descriptions, although high prices were a bit above the lowest, prices were in the Federal list.

Closing prices in the Federal list were down from 1-32 to 1-32 1/2.

Weakness in the European currencies brought further active buying into French, British, Swiss and Belgian bonds. French issues rose 5 to 7 points.

GEORGIA THANKSGIVING TRIP FOR ROOSEVELTS

Wife of President Tells of Annual Visit to Warm Springs Where He Regained Health.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—As they have done for several years, President and Mrs. Roosevelt will spend the Thanksgiving holidays at Warm Springs, Ga. The President was instrumental in establishing Warm Springs as a retreat for sufferers from infantile paralysis, after he was stricken with the disease in 1921.

Mrs. Roosevelt told yesterday of the annual adventure. On her lap lay a telegram giving details of a benefit concert to be held in Carnegie Hall, New York, Dec. 8 to raise funds for furnishing Georgia Hall, a new building at Warm Springs by the State of Georgia. The President will start South on Friday and she will join him on Thanksgiving day.

She described Warm Springs as she first found it, "a run-down summer resort, with an out-of-door pool bordered with bath-tub kind of things and an old-fashioned hotel." She told how he found healing in its waters, and giving a great deal of his own money, started the center where other sufferers could be helped.

"There's a buoyancy in that pool that I have never felt in any other water," she said. "A child learns to swim in no time, even though without the use of his legs, or his arms. In infantile paralysis cases it is important that no exercise be taken until the pain all goes, and then to exercise under water, which takes the weight off."

On Thanksgiving the President meets with the board in charge of the springs and plans for the care of patients who can only pay part. She told how last Thanksgiving day she sat across the table from a little boy, whose parents, having taken their five years' savings, $44, to buy him braces, "just couldn't do any more." The Warm Springs experts looked him over, said that with six months there he could walk without braces, and somehow the money was raised. The end of the six months found him walking without braces, but he was warned that what had been gained would be lost unless he could stay another half year. And at that very Thanksgiving table, Mrs. Roosevelt said, the money was raised.

That dinner was held, as will be the one this year, in the big dining room of the rambling old Meriwether Inn, into which come the 100 or more patients, in wheel chairs or on crutches.

G. H. HOWLAND of Miami, who knows human nature, is supervising a small gang of "short term" city prisoners, clearing brush and rubbish from a city lot. Devising an automobile when intoxicated is the most frequent offense among the prisoners, all young.

"Do they often run away?"
"No," says Mr. Howland, "not often and I can usually tell. This young fellow that I am keeping near me," pointing to a pale-faced boy about 20, swinging his heavy grubbing tool with savage energy, "was fixing to run away this morning. I could see it. I talked to him and told him he would only get picked up, and have to stay in a cell 60 days."

Mr. Howland, who carries a heavy automatic pistol, says, "No, I wouldn't shoot any young fellow only guilty of a misdemeanor. I might fire a shot over the water," pointing to the bay, "to scare him, I wouldn't hit him."

"But in county and State gangs of convicts convicted of more serious offenses, running away means getting killed. First the guard sends a rifle bullet close to the running man's leg, so that he will hear the bullet. Then he puts a bullet in the ground close to his feet, with a second warning. If he doesn't stop then, he kills him."

"Yes, these boys would rather be here working in the sunshine and they are allowed $2.50 a day which comes off their fine. That one with nothing on above the waist wanted a sun bath. He has had it, and what a sunburn."

New York's Academy of Science learns that a new living ear drum was grown in a frog made of skin from the back of another frog. Scientists are interested because the skin from a strange frog in the environment of an ear drum that had been destroyed turned to eardrum tissue and functioned normally.

Anti-vivisectionists will weep for "the poor frog" although that creature never knew what happened or suffered pain.

Suppose it had been possible to do the same for the great Beethoven, whose life was made miserable by deafness that prevented hearing his own music and hampered his genius.

Hearing and happiness, for the giant Beethoven would have been worth the lives of many frogs.

The Bible distinctly says that all creatures are not equal, which proves that all life is important, but says St. Matthew, every sparrow that falls to the ground is counted. "Fear ye not, therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows."

If we are worth more than many sparrows, how many frogs must we be worth?

The tide of United States immigration has turned. At present more people are leaving the United States than are coming into it, and the small quota of permissions allowing foreigners to come is not nearly filled. That is a bad sign for the United States.

This country was not built by aborigines, but by ambitious foreign men and women with courage to cross the ocean and come to an unknown land.

The first and second generation of immigrants, not the supercilious fifth or tenth generation, made this country. Recently we said to foreigners, "We don't want you except in small numbers." They now reply, "Thanks, we don't care to come."

This country would dwindle rapidly if that should continue, with our millions of acres uncultivated, millions of bushels of wheat, pigs, steers, chickens that we cannot eat, millions of secondhand automobiles unsold, possibly millions of new cars for which there is no market. What we need is PEOPLE, ten millions more of them now, and fifty millions more, later.

Some, ignorant, think more population must mean lower wages. When United States population was under 4,000,000 there was only one mechanic in the country able to earn as much as a dollar a day, all year round.

The day better than that in 1929 with 123,000,000 in the country.

The trouble is that we have more of everything than the people can consume, so evidently we need more people to help us out, as consumers.

Under Kansas law a farmer, sold for debt, may always keep one yoke of oxen. When the law was written it was thought the farmer couldn't get another start in life if you took his oxen. An effort to change that law was recently voted down.

It might be changed advantageously by substituting "one automobile" for "one yoke of oxen."

When They Hit Below
the Belt

(Copyright, 1933.)
A NOTHER vicious letter this morning. Anonymous, of course. They nearly always are. No, I wasn't surprised. They're the usual thing. I've actually had "form" ones! Sometimes a half dozen writing friends will receive duplicates in the same mail.

What are they about? Any subject will do as long as the sender can achieve his or her end, which is simply to hurt.

Do you endorse honesty? Sneeringly they inform you that "every body knows you writers are all liars—simply writing whatever you're paid to write; no caring whether it's true or not."

Do you advocate purity? Leeringly they insinuate that you're "no better than you should be" yourself.

Do you criticize the Status Quo—demand a better deal for the Under Dog—suggest a general housecleaning for America? Promptly you're labeled "traitor"—"spiteful"—"filthy"—"stealing Red!"

Do you, out of pity for some other broken-hearted mother, share your own grief, as you'd share black bread and sour wine? Then you're "showing off"—trying to get sympathy for yourself—pretending you had a child, which you probably never did, anyway.

So they come—sneering, leering, snarling, snapping. Every popular columnist gets them by the thousands.

How does a Secret Sniper get that way? Is he really disturbed by your treatment of a subject? Does he sincerely desire to serve society by advancing more intelligent ideas and showing up your nonsense?

No, indeed! If such were his motives, you could respect them and him. Constructive criticism is a fine thing. An honest enemy is a gallant foe. But no such healthy impulse lies behind the wallows "below the belt" of the Secret Sniper.

The Secret Sniper is secret, and a sniper, because he's sordid. He's sordid by his own sense of inferiority.

The Secret Sniper, like other human beings, wants his place in the sun. And should have it. But he won't endure the long grilling required to get it. He wants God—and Society—to hand him his Good Luck on a silver platter—Right Now! And when that doesn't happen, he sees red.

His frustrated egotism then proceeds to build a drama about his own defeat. If he can't be a Master Mind, he can at least be a Martyr. Other men may have their brief moment in the spotlight. But God's picking on HIM. The whole world's arrayed against HIM. And that should certainly be Front Page News.

For with, he proceeds to turn any and every chance remark into a personal insult. If his friends and family are indifferent to him, he's peeved. If they're exasperated, he's persecuted. As for columnists—he "hates" 'em one and all, damn their eyes!

For are they not occupying the space and monopolizing the glory which should be his, by rights? Why, if he had the break, he'd make 'em all look like two-spots! This being impossible, he does the next best thing. He snipes—sneers, slanders and belittles. And out of it all he gets an immense "He'll show them!" in the satisfaction. He'll "learn 'em!" power, too! He'll make people afraid of him—make people pay attention to him!

Why is a Secret Sniper? That's why.

Why is it best to ignore Snipers—let time take care of them—time and their own cussedness? That's also why.

Only philosophy may be fine—but what a bang I'd get out of giving one of them a swell sock in the eye!

Vitamin D and Tooth
Decay

(Owing to the illness of Walter Winchell, this column is being written by Paul Yasovits until Mr. Winchell's recovery.)

Things Nobody Should Know!

That someone should tell Mariene Dietrich long pants were invented by a King to hide his ugly legs.

That there are 300,000 drug addicts in New York City.

That Napoleon was troubled with lice for a good part of his life. (Which probably accounts for those poses with his hand in his coat.)

That the highest-priced three-minute telephone call you can make from New York is to Sumatra. The charge is $49.50.

The French Government has erected a monument in Camembert to Mme. Joanne Harel, who invented Camembert cheese in 1791. (All right, but why slight the fellow who invented crackers?)

That the game of checkers dates back to 1600 B. C.

(About the same time the office boy went out to get my coffee!)

That an indication of the return of prosperity is the fact that postal receipts are showing a gain for the first time since the Hoover decline. (But stamps are still taking a licking!)

That Zachary Taylor is the only President of the United States under whose administration there were no Cabinet changes. (Which probably accounts for his death after only two years in the White House.)

That Japan has an average of four volcanic disturbances a day. (So that's why they're trying to get into China!)

That the game of polo was invented by a Persian nobleman more than 2000 years ago.

That the odds against a railroad passenger meeting death in an accident are 100 to 1.

That a diet deficient in vitamin D is a contributing factor to the development of caries. The tooth, when it is fully formed and has completely formed covering of enamel, without pits or fissures, is known to resist decay much more effectively than the poorly developed tooth.

Baked apples stuffed with chopped dates and nuts are delicious for dessert for luncheon.

STAMP
NEWS

Russian Balloons.

RUSSIA'S newest stamps, a set of three commemorating the recent stratosphere flight which broke the world altitude record, have shown up on this side of the Atlantic.

The stamps are long and narrow, this design being adopted to give a full length drawing of the stratosphere balloon. Across the top is 19,000 m., the height in meters reached by the balloon, while down one side is the inscription, "U. S. R. 30-8-32" the figures giving the date of the flight, Sept. 30, 1932. Values are five, 10 and 20 kon.

The Dutch East Indies have issued benefit stamps in favor of their unemployed young men. The series consists of only four values and the surtax will be used for the unemployed young men. They are as follows: 2c plus 1c, lilac and sepia, 5c plus 2½c, green and sepia, 12½c plus 2½c, orange and sepia and 15c plus 5c, blue and sepia.

At the same time it was announced that a complete regular postage series entirely new, will be issued shortly. Only two designs will be used. The design on the value up to 10c, portrays a plowman; the other design on the rest of the values is similar to that on the current 12½c.

News from Here and There.

The reason for the recent 200c overprint of Brazil, is that numerous forgeries of the current 300c stamp were discovered and to offset the counterfeits the 200c was surcharged with the new value and the 200c stamp withdrawn from sale.

The recent New York to Kaunas flight for which stamps of Lithuania were overprinted has been declared entirely unofficial by that country. So far neither Scotts or Gibbons have listed them.

A stamp collector in Minocla, Long Island, died of pneumonia, brought on by malnutrition. He starved to death rather than sell his collection. At the estate sale held after his death the collection sold for $1370.

The inflation issues of Germany are going higher in price due to a continental demand for them.

Much pressure is being brought to bear on the Postoffice Department for a stamp to commemorate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the evacuation of New York by the British, Nov. 25, 1783.

The estimated catalog value of the first five-day Hind Auction Sale is $555,300.

The Post-Office Department is considering the use of an NRA postmark.

New Issues.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC—Two values of the 1924-25 series, 30c claret and 1½ blue, have been overprinted "M. R. C." for the official use of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The low value in rough block letters and the high value in Roman capitals.

CUBA—A set of two stamps will be issued to commemorate the centenary of the birth of Dr. Carlos Finlay Dec. 3. The stamp will bear a portrait of Dr. Finlay with the dates "1833-1933." The values are 3c, claret and 1½ blue. They will be placed on sale Dec. 3.

JUGO-SLAVIA—Four values of the 1928 Semi-Postal series, 25p plus 25p, green, 50p plus 50p, olive brown, 1d plus 50p, scarlet, have been overprinted as follows: across the top of the stamp was overprinted "Jugo-Slavija" and the same was overprinted across the bottom in Slavic characters. At the same time four bars were overprinted to obliterate the red Charly surcharge so that the stamps are now regular postage as follows: 25p of which there were 1,590,622 overprinted, 50p of which 1,357,401 were overprinted and 1d of which there were 664,892 overprinted.

LATVIA—The four airmail stamps recently issued to aid the military aviators are limited to 14,200 each perforated and 6120 sets imperforate.

MEXICO—The 40c, violet and 50c, olive brown of the 1923 series, have been overprinted in two lines, horizontally in black with the following inscription "Servicio Oficial." A number of the 50c value were overprinted by error with the following inscription "Oficial" and accidentally released.

NICARAGUA—Five values of the Columbus commemoratives recently issued have been found imperforate as follows: 2c, red, 3c, deep rose, 4c, orange, 5c, yellow and 25c, dark blue. The six values of the airmail set, 2c, red, violet, 4c, violet, 6c, violet blue, 8c, deep green, 15c, olive brown and 10c, green, have been issued imperforate. The 20c, yellow has been found imperforate vertically.

NORWAY—Twelve large horizontal oblong stamps have been issued for official use. The stamps have the figures of value in the lower corners with the Coat of Arms and Crown in between. Across the top is the inscription "Offentlig Sak." They are printed on paper watermarked Posthorns. The values and colors are: 2c, orange, bistre; 5c, orange, magenta; 7c, orange; 10c, yellow green; 15c, olive; 20c, red; 25c, yellow brown; 30c, bright blue; 40c, gray; 60c, red.

WHY did radio disguise Francis Lederer's good looks with an Eskimo makeup in "Man of Two Worlds"? Lederer was brought here from the New York stage after the women had made him a matinee idol. Radio won't repeat the Lederer mistake. Francis will be seen as himself in his second picture, "Music Man," the story of the love of Johann Strauss.

Everyone was agog over the story that Barbara Stanwyck and Frank Fay had quarreled and separated when Frank failed to meet Barbara's train on her arrival from New York. Barbara shot straight from the shoulder. She said she had expected Frank to meet her, but that he had been detained and there was no quarrel.

Radio tried to borrow Johnny Weissmuller for the lead in "Three Came Unarmed," the story of three boys who, brought up in the wilderness, come to a big city for the first time unprepared for modern civilization. M. G. M., not sure just how Weissmuller will rate in a talking picture since the best he has done so far is the sign language in "Tarzan," said they would like to read the story. M. G. M. liked "Three Came Unarmed" so well that they offered to buy it. You can guess the answer.

The most remarkable child since Jackie Cooper became known from coast to coast is Jimmie Butler, aged 11. Jimmie's radiant personality, his naturalness and his real boyishness won everyone who saw him in "Only Yesterday." Unless I am mistaken, you will find Jimmie within another few months a potential rival to Jackie for screen honors.

Grandpa Grouchy
Galump

CHRISTOPHER took a long breath. It seemed as if the patches were not going to open. Then—like the greatest wonder in the world—they did! Jelly Bear and Honey Bear were floating safely down to the earth.

Without their weight the plane behaved better. Christopher managed to get it to the ground without accident, just as the Bears were landing not far from their own cave.

Willy Nilly was rushing toward them. So was Top Notch, the Rooster, so was Rip, the Dog, and so were the Ducks. How happy everyone was now that Jelly and Honey Bear were safe and sound.

"Jelly Bear! Honey Bear! You're safe," they shouted and crowded and barked and quacked.

"Christopher saved us," growled Jelly Bear gratefully.

"We'll all have a wonderful supper," said Willy Nilly, "to celebrate the return of our dear Bears."

And such a supper as it was! They had everything they wanted to eat, and all the creatures of Puddle Muddle enjoyed the feast so much that they were all full.

After supper was over and the lamp was lighted Willy Nilly got out a big bowl and filled it with water. Then he got some soap and some pipes and they all blew soap bubbles.

What fun they had, and what amazing bubbles Rip could make, when all of a sudden there was a loud rap at the door.

"What in the world can that be, and who is calling on us at this hour of the night?" Willy Nilly asked.

He opened the door.

There stood Grandpa Grouchy Galump with his gun!

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I LEASE information why ladies are allowed to dress in more attire on the streets when they please and men are arrested should they try to dress like women?

Ladies dress, not in knickers, but lots of times in a man's suit. As I have noticed, is there no law for this? A SUBSCRIBER.

Yes, I know. We can all cite Mene Dietrich, for instance. I have never heard of her arrest—though I think it might please her very much; no better publicity.

It may be that the men dress in women's clothes offend the sense of the policemen, more than women dressed in masculine attire. And perhaps the architecture of each is too often overlooked, when this attire is affected by the opposite "sexes," as the late Ring Lardner would have put it.

At any rate, if you wish accurate information, it might be well to consult the Legal Aid Bureau, at the Municipal Courts Building.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

AM just one, perhaps, of a thousand young widows with a child who is faced with the same problem.

Doesn't it seem just a little unjust that married women who have husbands employed, hold the stenographic and other position when there are countless single men and widows in dire need?

Not long ago, I chanced to ask a man about this, and he said: "I've advised men seem to be trying to take advantage of this depression and young women out of employment, and desperate, are their prey. This is my appeal: 'Please, Mr. Business Man, give the single girls and widows a chance.'"

My dear Mrs. Carr:
YOU may think this is a strange question, but I am sure you can help me.

I have a small job, making $37 a month and I have nothing to do with my money but spend it as I get it. What kind of business could I go into and make use of my money and make more too? I have a mother-in-law who could have charge of it for me while I am still working. My work holds out from September until June and part-time in the summer. X. Y. Z.

I would look into the Postal Savings (at the Government offices in the Post Office building, Eighth and Olive streets), and start a savings account with the idea of accumulating a certain amount for a stated purpose. In order to decide this purpose and to look into all kinds of work for women—some interesting summer work—write me, sending self-addressed envelope for my article on "Occupations for Women." I hope this will help you.

Dear Mrs. Carr:
SOME time ago the Post-Dispatch published a small news item saying, now is the time for all old people desiring a pension to write the Old Age Pension Bureau and file their claim. But it neglected to state to whom these applications should be made.

The Men in Clara Bow's Life

CLARA and VICTOR FLEMING, the director.

Gary Cooper and Gilbert Roland Were Her First Admirers in Hollywood—How the Richman-Bow Romance Was Cooked Up As a Publicity Stunt.

By MAE TINEE.
CHAPTER THREE.
LINOR GLYN looked at Clara Bow carelessly out of slanting green eyes. The eyes narrowed. She quirked a finger. A producer bent an ear.

"She has it," said Linor Glyn. "Has WHAT?" asked the producer.

"IT!" repeated Linor Glyn, who had been scouring the studios in search of a girl to play in her forthcoming screen play.

And so a pronoun became synonymous with personality, sex appeal, physical vitality, and allure. Clara Bow was chosen as heroine for a photo play the author was writing, and she became known the world over as the "IT" girl—a title that made a gold fish bowl of her life.

Sybarites and parasites flocked round. True friends and false—the and the impetuous, untrained, audacious youngster wasn't much on discrimination. She'd always hungered for love and attention—though she never DID give a hang for publicity. So she took and gave with a will.

And she was just a little jug of syrup to the men who flocked around her files.

Till 4 O'Clock in the Morning.

She did the most unprecedented thing—like entertaining a whole football team at dinner and then scrambling joyously with them on the lawn till 4 o'clock in the morning.

Dark, Latin, romantic Gilbert Roland was her first Hollywood love, though they did not meet until "Wings" and thrilled to his movie kiss. Her FIRST love, with the exception of one Brooklyn "Willie"—last name unknown—for whom Clara had once cherished an adolescent affection.

The affair with Gilbert was intriguing to Clara, but far more than that to her swain, who dashed about eating his heart out with jealousy over first one man, then another. The vehement flame burned fiercely when Victor Fleming, the director, saw—who knows what is said by those who claim to know, Clara had no idea he was married. But a Mrs. Earl Pearson materialized with a vengeance. She filed suit for divorce and asked Clara for $150,000 for alienation of affections. Clara, furious, wanted to fight the case, but the studio insisted that she settle. So—to quote Clara: "I laid $30,000 on the line and the wife took it."

HARRY RICHMAN wanted some publicity so he got himself engaged to Clara.

Ah, whatever else she may have been, Clara Bow was certainly a woman who paid and paid and paid.

Mr. Richman's Publicity Stunt.

Then Harry Richman decided he wanted to break into the movies—and how, more easily, than to hitch his wagon to a screen star?

Considering Clara's vogue, studio executives decided it would be clever to announce Richman's engagement to the biggest box office attraction, Clara, ever amiable, was willing.

It started as a publicity stunt, and, in my opinion, it was never anything else with Richman, but Clara fell in love. Well—THAT affair, the desertion of Daisy de Voe, the hair dresser whom she had befriended, taken into her home and trusted with her money and her confidence, unfortunately publicized the Lake Tahoe gambling casino incident, all contributed to the chaos into which Clara's life now resolved.

Nervous breakdown—termination of contract—sanatorium—stories in the papers of other girls, Carmen Barnes, Peggy Shannon, Sylvia Sidney, who were coming forward to appropriate the "IT" girl's shoes. . . . Sylvia Sidney was brought from New York especially to take Clara Bow's good old-fashioned "IT" articles in a scandal sheet—its editor was convicted of criminal libel and sent to a Federal prison. . . . "She's done for!" said the tabby cats.

But they hadn't reckoned with Clara Bow's good old-fashioned "IT" spirit. They hadn't reckoned with the loyalty of the men for whom she had reaped millions at the box office. They hadn't counted on—Rex Bell.

To Rest and To Forget.

Through all those hectic, hideous days, with the papers full of stories about them, Rex Bell, wealthy cowboy movie actor, had stood by. And now he asked Clara to marry him; to give him the right to protect her and help her "come back."

"Not now!" Clara wailed. "NOT NOW! I don't want to be married or anything—now. I want to just rest—and forget."

On June 15, 1931, two catfolds of persons, luggage and pets pulled away from Clara's house for Rex's extensive ranch between Nipton, Cal., and Searchlight, Nev. In one car were Clara and Rex and Clara's nurse, Mrs. Clara Collins, and a Great Dane dog. In the other rode Clara's chauffeur and cook with the heavier luggage and many household supplies. Rex was to stay at

Whether or not there is any harm in it, both the young woman and her husband are inviting "Mrs. Grundy" to do, or worst. An occasional trip, quite occasional, might be all right. I think if your husband will use his wits he can avoid too much repetition of these trips. And you are quite right to object; naturally you do not want your husband placed in a false position.

Contracting for Slam, and Redoubling, on a Five-Card Suit Headed by the Eight Spot

DERRICK WERNER (North) scored a well earned top score on the following hand in the American Whist League Congress at Hanover, N. H., last summer. They both derived tremendous satisfaction from their bidding of the hand. And I feel that Johnny also deserves high praise for playing the hand exactly right.

South dealt and passed—had he bid now, he could not have made any move later. West passed, North bid a diamond. Opponents never bid. South, one spade. Now North made a grand bid—four spades. This Johnny correctly interpreted as meaning, "I really have a spade bid myself; at least, dismiss all worries about the weakness of your spade suit, as I have tremendous high-card trump support for you. Also, my diamond bid was a good one and my hand indicates that you are unlikely to be set at four spades even if your hand is little better than your spade suit." Johnny now bid six spades, realizing that his high red cards supplied the slam element; while ability to win at least the second round of clubs if that suit were opened controlled the timing of the hand. "Double" by West, never doubting that his king of trumps would win a trick in addition to the ace of clubs. "Redouble" by Werner, North, certain that the doubler held the king of spades and knowing that card to be trapped.

The Play.

West opened a diamond, rightly refusing to jeopardize his king of hearts or to risk an immediate ruff of the ace of clubs. South won with the ace and took a spade finesse. When East showed out of spades, Johnny saw that his problem was to get back to his hand often enough to catch the king of trumps without losing more than one trick in the process. Both from the double and from the lead, he felt that West held the king of hearts. The double definitely marked him with the ace of clubs. If he also held the queen of clubs, the slam could not be made; but if that queen were in East's hand, the best chances of getting in was plainly to force out the ace of clubs and get in with a second club lead. Declarer, therefore, led the jack of clubs. East wisely did not cover. West, wisely, as it turned out, won this first club lead with the ace and returned a diamond. Winning in dummy, South regained the lead with the club and finessed spades again. For the last time he re-entered his hand with the ace of hearts, and was now able to capture the trump king. Now all North's cards are good except the remaining hearts, for which South still has a trump, having got rid of the queen of hearts on the good diamond. If North is the first to bid spades, he will not be doubled and, consequently, will not be tipped off how to play the hand for six-odd. Further, West, seeing the doubleton club in dummy, will probably stay off the first club lead.

The Significance of the Triple Ruff.
South readily appreciated that

Beauty Clinic

THE new baby-bonnet type of hat is causing quite a furore, and oh, so often we hear women say, "My forehead is simply dreadful. I couldn't possibly wear one of those hats." This is nonsense, for every woman can and should have a smooth, young-looking forehead.

If it is a case of wrinkles and dryness, a good nourishing cream and muscle oil, patted in well at night, should be used. This patting must be done with a little cotton pad, or a patter, dipped in a strong astringent. The astringent tightens the cream and oil nourishes and fill out the lines—correcting dryness.

A good scrubbing with a complexion brush is an excellent treatment for the oil skin and black-head condition. After scrubbing, follow with a good pore paste to be left on over night. To hide forehead defects a liquid powder may be used.

North was endeavoring to give him approximately the same information that would be conveyed by a triple ruff in reply to an opening bid: "Don't worry about the game, don't worry about the pitiful weakness of your trump suit. I know it and can take care of it; I want you to develop a slam, if you can, solely by virtue of your high cards in the off suits." I think you will agree that these two players treat each other's bidding very thoroughly—far more than that of their adversaries; why not?

Making nourishing soup in sufficient quantity to last several days is a good idea, particularly where there are children, for a cup of soup and a few toasted crackers make a good mid-morning meal.

DANGEROUS WATERS

WALLACE IRWIN

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO.

FOR days Wyattville had borne the news to Shelby Wyatt, vainly, as you bear brass to the goldsmith's. From Estelle came the information that Gene, sensitive about the bad publicity which his yachting party had given him, had abandoned Wyattville and opened up his fine new apartment in East End avenue. Wyatt Furness called once, rasping his complaint: Gene Fairchild was on the Horse Show Committee, had promised to underwrite the deficit. Shelby found herself making vain excuses, answering ridiculous questions.

Then a fresh development. A body had been found in the marshes near Port Washington. And that was where poor Olga had gone, drifting with the currents. A diamond wrist watch, engraved with the initials O. H., sufficiently identified her. A coroner's jury decided she had met her death through accidental drowning.

In what remained of Myr's Zellick, Olga off-stage name, a mark showed, a narrow cracking of the skull. Mr. Fairchild had no trouble in explaining that. The sea had been full of timber. And he had ordered the body shipped, at his own expense, back to California.

On the night following the coroner's inquest, Shelby wandered through the lonely house, making odd jobs for herself, putting off bedtime when she must lie against her pillow, thinking, thinking, getting nowhere.

Shelby's wandering took her into the kitchen, where, on a porcelain table next the sink, she found a very late edition of Mrs. Agnew's favorite tabloid. The picture of two equestrians, handsomely mounted—Eugene K. Fairchild and Olga Hungerford—came before her, better forgotten. Above it all there was a densely black headline:

WHO IS THE MISSING SHOW GIRL?

Shelby was pricking cold to her shoulders, to her hair as she followed instructions on Page 1 and turned to Page 3.

"It is now very definitely indicated that the affair was a foursome in which a beautiful unknown played so strong a role that lovely Olga found life no longer worth while. When the joy-yacht arrived at Port Jefferson there were but two, outside the crew, to tell the story—Eugene K. Fairchild and Clarence M. Goodyard. Yet according to evidence there had been four."

HALF a dozen times that night she was up, padding round the house in her little, clacking mules, turning on the lights in front of her so that there would be no dark corners. You fool, she scolded herself, are you afraid? She tightened her nerves, as she had so often, taking a dangerous fence or a wide ditch. And what am I afraid of? She asked, Myself? With scorn she laughed away the silly idea. Shelby Barrett hadn't been born into the world to let things beat her down. Or what was what she said, over and over; fanning back the corners of her eyes, she needed now, above all other things,

She awoke in broad autumn sunlight and saw Johnnie standing in the middle of the room. His eyes were upon her, he was carrying a paper. She got the picture singly, as you see things by looking down a long tube. Maybe she screamed. He caught her as she was leaping out of bed. "I phoned early this morning," he was saying, "but couldn't raise you. What's matter, chuck?"

"I don't know what I'd have done if you hadn't come home," she said, trembling all over.

He was stroking her hair, but his tone had grown abstracted. "I came across on the ferry, to get a look at you. But I've got to beat it to New York. The news is rotten." She saw the pile of papers he had dropped.

"Wall street's gone bust," he announced. "Worst panic in history. So that was all. Just a Wall street panic. Shelby lay against his will, lapping, panting her relief. "Hill got me last night when I reached Buffalo. I don't know what the idea is, but I suppose it's retrenchment."

"Oh, my dear. Don't let's worry about money. That's all right. Oh, Johnnie! You're home!" She drew his body tight against her cheek, closed her eyes, dwelt on the beauty of him. "Johnnie, you won't go away from me again, will you?"

"No, dear, no." He was tender with her for an instant, then, exactly back to his news. "The Stock Exchange suspended operations—can you imagine that? Firms are blowing up like toy balloons. And Fairchild's sunk deeper than anything."

"Fairchild!" She sat up. Financial ruin now had a personal meaning for her. Johnnie was turning to a column which, in serene times, might have blazed and crackled all over the front page.

The Gideon Investment Trust, $14,000,000 concern, which had the meteoric fortune of Eugene K. Fairchild (he read) closed its doors yesterday afternoon and declared itself insolvent, after Clarence M. Goodyard had taken people's money and used a part of it to pay back fantastic dividends. The grand jury had indicted him.

Shelby rode toward Gene's house on the hill. She mustn't keep Briary any longer; she was glad the loan on him was paid off, so that he was hers to dispose of. Today Gene's estate would need every cent that could go into it. This afternoon the Sheriff's sale would begin selling out Gene's sales and the automobiles in his garage and the fine furniture he had brought out. Heavily Shelby wondered how much Briary would bring. She hoped Wy Furness would get him. Wy loved horses, and he has always wanted Briary.

In the stable yard men loitered like guards around a captured city. She addressed a small Negro boy who had been showing a juggler's

A Dress of the New Green Crepe

A Style Article by a St. Louis Girl

To Be Worn at Luncheon or Tea

Miss Louise McCluney is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. McCluney. She made her formal debut last year and served as third special Maid of Honor at the Veiled Prophet Ball last year.

WITH the first crisp days comes the question, "What will I wear to the luncheon today, or the tea tomorrow?"

Slip into this model of the new autumn shade of green in bagherra crepe. The trimming of the waist is tricky. It is a white three-leaf clover effect with a silver button in each leaf. The rest of the dress is plain with full sleeves which fall below the elbow. Fine little buttons make up the buckle on the belt.

The hat is of brown velvet with contrasting belting material which matches the dress. It is a Lilly Dache original model and one you will be proud to wear. Brown gloves and a brown suede or patent leather bag would be appropriate accessories and, of course, those new suede brown shoes.

trick with two curly-combs. Here is one of Mr. Fairchild's horses that hasn't been listed for the sale, she announced firmly. The boy gazed at Briary. "I guess Mr. Brown knows," he said, and chased away to bring back an officious person in a pink shirt.

"Why wasn't the horse listed with the estate?" asked Mr. Brown suspiciously, throwing away a cigar.

"I've been keepin' him for his board," said Shelby, longing to lay her hand on Briary's neck. But she stood her distance. "I reckon Mr. Fairchild forgot about Briary."

"Briary?" asked Mr. Brown. "Briary Bush by Tex Major, out of First Lily. You'll find all about him in the stud book. He's 4 years old, of Kentucky stock, and took all the blue ribbons and cups for his class on the Pacific Coast last year. Just look up the rest of it."

If there was drama in Shelby's swag as she turned on her heel and left the stable yard, it was just play acting. Once she thought she heard Briary's velvet whinny, following her. But that was too late.

Somewhere was running after her; she could hear the pebbles crackling behind her. Turning, she saw Gene Fairchild, somewhat sweaty, but quite dapper in his faintly plaid box coat and gray hat.

"Hey, Shelby! In a hurry?" he called after her, and when he came nearer she noticed how very well groomed he was, dressed as for a public appearance. This was Gene, never quite defeated, always trusting in his ingenuity to squirm himself out of a hole.

Shelby was going to fib a little, say something about looking for Estelle, but Gene cut in hoarsely, "I see you put Briary up for sale with the others. You didn't need to do that."

His directness embarrassed her. "He really belonged to the estate, you know. He ought to bring something."

"You didn't need to do that," he repeated offhand, but his mouth had become sensitive, emotional. "Those appraisers never knew anything. They had to ask me, or they wouldn't have got half my furniture on the list. Too bad, though—I might have slipped a few nice pieces over to your place."

He yawned widely. "Anyhow, I've got a lot of publicity out of this. Shelby, why did you bring back that horse?"

"You know I owe you a lot, Gene. That's silly." But he was blinking, pathetic, shorn of his pompous defenses. He was going to say something, thought better of it, and veered. "Know why I'm here today? To lay the cornerstone of the Wyattville Industrial School. Tie that!"

"But you're not going to."

"Why not? They've got my

SEEN in THE STORES

By SYLVIA

It took quite a while for the shirtwaist theme in after-dark fashions to make its debut in St. Louis, but now that it has arrived practically all of the stores are showing it some attention. Some all-in-one dresses of this type are being exploited, but they aren't as clever as the separate shirtwaist and skirt versions. When seen at their best the shirtwaists are of colorful metallic brocades, with tucked bosoms, high collars and short sleeves, while the skirts to be worn with them are of black transparent velvet.

The dinner frock which has a dark skirt and a light top is so akin to the shirtwaist idea that it provides an excellent substitute. And when only the upper part of the bodice is of the light material, the women who can't cut themselves in two at the waistline find this style becoming. Bright red crepe tops a black crepe skirt that illustrates the theme, as does a white and gold metallic crepe draped cape that tops a sheer black skirt.

If you're looking for something quite unusual in the way of a daytime handbag, you might like a circle and square combination. The bag is of black suede and as square as an expert could make it, while a circle of tortoise shell surrounds it, touching only at each of the four corners. The only trouble about this bag is that you might pick it up by the bottom and scatter items about in a Rockefeller manner.

The term "skit skat" has nothing to do with a feline pet but concerns some new roller skating oxfords. These are of the moccasin type laced almost down to the toes, and low of heel. An extra flange of rubber protects the heel from the skates. The tongue protrudes above the lacing and is stitched down across the top, so that the skate strap can be slipped through the opening and held in place. The tongue is lined with a fleeced fabric to insure against the strap rubbing the instep. Rough calf and seal provide a snappy leather combination.

Bright red hats and matching pocketbooks are sounding a warning that winter will soon be here. And anyone who finds red becoming knows that there is nothing like a little hat of this shade to add the final touch to a dark fur coat on snowy days and evenings. The prettiest hats I've seen are of velvet, either shirred, stitched or arranged in the form of little petals. Handbags are of the matching velvet.

Women have become so attached to white bows that they refuse to give them up. That fingerlike touch is much too becoming for it to disappear very soon. Both attractive to the eye and flattering to the neckline are the bows of white net, either ruffled or fluted. Ribbed satin bows with square jacket sections attached by one point likewise are appealing.

White silk cord is called upon to play many important roles in the new style shows. It is the dependable factor as well as the most decorative on a brown and white plaid blouse because it gathers the neckline close about the throat and assures that the wrists shall get the same service from the sleeves. One large white button marks the front of the natural waistline.

Evening wraps are becoming more elegant every day, now that the full length ones have been launched on a successful season. If you're going to for an elegant social season in a big way and don't mind spending your money, consider a wrap of black velvet with a tiered cape collar of chin-chilla. Or if black and white appeals to you more, take a look at the ermine-trimmed models with the monk's type of collar.

Patent leather flowers are blossoming forth in any number of color schemes. Yellow and brown, black and white are two of the most fascinating combinations—the idea being to wear one of each instead of two exactly alike. No attempt has been made to present an imitation of any particular species. In fact some might say they are so modernistic they resemble roses more than they do posies.

Watches, Rings and Teeth Go Into

Canvassers Buying Up the Old Metal

Gold Melters' Pots in St. Louis

By FAY PROFILET.

ANY Watches, any wedding rings, any old gold teeth today? The old clothes man came around to the back door searching for rags, bones, iron and bottles but today the old gold buyer is coming to the front door and leaving with everything from the baby's first ring to that loose gold crown on the back molar.

More than a hundred gold buyers are canvassing St. Louis and surrounding towns and refiners are working overtime since President Roosevelt's gold-buying plan was begun. Gold that is used by dentists, jewelers and other artisans is being purchased from refiners and their crucibles are filled with a strange collection of articles.

"Whether or not it is a home or hotel, there seems to be some old gold about that will bring in a little ready money," said one of the buyers. "If all the old gold in St. Louis was melted a million dollars could be put into circulation. Everyone who has sold me old gold did so because of the need of money."

"There was the pathetic old couple who sold their dead daughter's wedding ring because they needed bread. Then there was another woman who said, 'Yes, indeed, I have some old gold, you can just take this wedding ring, I'll learn him how to leave this house every morning without a word.'"

"A doll or so in the hand is worth gold rings on the fingers," said another canvasser. "A solid gold watch, an heirloom from France, found its way to the refiner's pot because neither the owners nor I knew its real value. Many persons who think their jew-

A pathetic case was the one of the old lady in a little town near St. Louis, who with interest watched her neighbors dispose of their old jewelry. After several days she decided to sell the buyer a pair of old earrings and a brooch. This jewelry has been made in Switzerland by her great grandfather a hundred and sixty-five years ago, as an engagement gift to his bride. The soft-hearted gold buyer (and there are many of them) found a collector who bought the jewelry and who now has it on display.

The widow of a missionary tearfully sold a collection of 17 gold medals that had been presented to her husband at various times. The most treasured one she explained, for he has been in this business for 24 years. A connoisseur, he always tried to find a market for antique jewelry as he dislikes melting

J. HAUSER, 115 North Eleventh street, refiner and dealer, says his business has increased 35 per cent and the dozen old gold buyers have increased to more than 100 since the price advanced. Many persons bring their old gold direct to Mr. Hauser, who also has many interesting stories, for he has been in this business for 24 years. A connoisseur, he always tried to find a market for antique jewelry as he dislikes melting

Sometimes it is a law they made themselves, which is in the nature of making up rules in a card game after you see what kind of hands have been dealt. The spirit of the law is what we should all be trying to obey, not avoid. If two contractors are bidding against each other and one of them is adhering to NRA and the other is not, the labor costs of the one who is not adhering easily enable him to make the lowest bid. But there are things more sacred than the lowest bid, and one of them is the fact that the laborer is worthy of his hire. Right now it is patriotic to buy at the high price, if labor is sharing in it.

beautiful hand wrought pieces for the little gold that it had been his experience that the majority of wedding rings were sold by divorcees. Many women come to him to sell their wedding rings, but somehow they lose their nerve or think it will bring them "bad luck" to part with the ring. He has box after box of old jewelry. Dipping into one he brought forth a handful of old watch cases, optical frames, a baby's necklace of gold beads and a crucifix. He also recovered gold from dental scrap, book binders, shoe factories and sign painters who use gold leaf.

It was interesting to see what really became of all this old trashed and broken jewelry. After it is weighed and bought it is melted and flaked; it is then put in King's water, which dissolves the gold. The gold then becomes a liquid and is filtered; the silver chloride remains in the filters and with a special solution the gold is precipitated. The gold in a chloride stage, is dried and put into a crucible. It is then placed in a furnace 1800 degrees; it starts melting and finally goes back into metallic form. The gold is then 999 plus or 24 carat.

The silver chloride is treated and refined and made into silver, and platinum chloride is recovered and refined and made into five per cent and 10 per cent iridium platinum. This is used in making wedding and engagement rings. Copper, zinc, tin and other base metals go up in fumes.

New Kind of Conference

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

CAN we ever have peace through the medium of penciled notations on the margins of foolscap paper?

Starting with the Versailles scenario we have had a series of agreements, pacts and codicils which have been little less than 90-day notes. They all wound up in the ragman's bag.

A modern conference serves but one object. It's food and lodging for the delegates.

Everybody desires peace but no one gets it. Nobody wants war but everybody fights.

So, why not reverse the conference process? Instead of the nations slapping each other on the backs and telling how friendly they are let 'em organize a war conference.

At the battle debate there would be nothing but bulldozing, threats and horrible promises. Each delegate would tell how fierce he was and what he was going to do to his distinguished contemporaries.

Man Giving Name of T. A. Thurmond Signs Confession Admitting Slaying of Brooke Hart and Name Accomplishes.

BODY THROWN IN BAY, HE ASSERTS

Alleges Son of Wealthy San Jose Merchant Was Beaten to Death—Two Under Arrest, Another Man Sought.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Nov. 14.—Louis O'Neal, prominent San Jose attorney, announced today a suspect who gave his name as Thomas H. Thurmond had admitted participating in the kidnaping here of Brooke Hart, 22 years old, son of a department store owner, and had confessed killing the young man shortly thereafter.

Chief of Police Black of San Jose announced O'Neal had been authorized by him to issue the statement and that the confession was taken after Thurmond and another suspect had been arrested.

The announcement was made after O'Neal had appeared early today in the role of intermediary for the missing youth's father, Alex J. Hart. Thurmond, one of the two men arrested, named Jack Holmes, the other suspect, as his accomplice. He said they threw the body into San Francisco Bay.

The purported confession of young Hart was beaten to death before a mysterious telephone call was made from San Francisco to the Hart home here last Thursday night in which a $40,000 ransom demand was made.

The confession set into motion search of the San Francisco Bay district for traces of another purported suspect and a hunt of the bay region near San Mateo for traces of the body.

Young Hart disappeared about 10 o'clock last Thursday evening after leaving the department store in which his father had recently made him a junior executive. His failure to keep an engagement with a friend caused the latter to telephone the Hart home about 8 p.m. and officers were notified.

At 10 o'clock that night the telephone in the Hart home rang and the caller demanded $40,000 "you want to see your son alive again." A few hours later, headlight burning, was found on a highway 12 miles north of San Jose.

Text of Alleged Confession.

Thurmond follows: "I, Harold Thurmond, voluntarily make this statement to R. E. Verterli, Harold Anderson of the United States Department of Justice and to Sheriff William J. Emig and Undersheriff Earle Hamilton that I have known Jack Holmes approximately one year; that he has been approximately five or six weeks ago, I approached me with a plan to kidnap Brooke Hart and hold him for ransom."

"We discussed this matter on one or two occasions and Thursday, Nov. 3, shortly before 9 o'clock Holmes and I saw Brooke Hart come to a parking lot, where he parked his roadster. Holmes and I had previously planned just how we would kidnap Brooke Hart."

"Jack Holmes was to get in the car of Brooke Hart as it approached Market street and I was to follow in another car which belonged to Jack Holmes."

"On this ninth of November Brooke Hart obtained his car from the lot and drove out the driveway toward Market street."

He Follows Car. "Jack Holmes met the car on the right and opened the door of Brooke Hart's roadster with one hand and kept the other hand in his pocket as though he had a gun. He forced Hart to go away with him."

"According to directions I followed the car. In Holmes' coach which had been parked on Market street."

"As soon as I saw him pass me I followed Brooke Hart's car. I proceeded to follow him and waited for them at the panger garage."

Shortly thereafter Jack Holmes and Brooke Hart drove by in the car to a point on the Evans road about seven miles from San Jose."

"When Jack Holmes stopped the car they both got out and Holmes forced Hart to get in the back of the car which I was driving. We then drove short distance ahead when
